3 (In open court; case called)

4 THE COURT: I will begin with some general thoughts.

5 Thank you all for coming today and thank you also for the 6 briefing in this case, which is exceptionally high quality. I
7 am grateful for that because, and this is a bit of a frolicking 8 detour, sometimes you think being in the Southern District of 9 New York that all of the briefing you will receive will be 10 extraordinary and excellent and amazing and it is not. So it 11 is fantastic when it is so I am grateful to you.

12 I have questions for each side as it were and you will 13 have to let me know who is the best person to whom to direct 14 the question. I ask you to keep a things in mind with respect 15 to these. Number one, please don't read too deeply into these 16 questions. One of my jobs and one of the things I enjoy most 17 is kicking the tires of a parties' arguments. So the fact that 18 I may ask something that suggests I have a particular view, 19 doesn't mean I have that view. Please don't think that.

20 Secondly, there are questions that I think are more 21 appropriately directed to one side or another; but when it is 22 your turn, if there is something you would like to add or 23 clarify, you are certainly welcome to do that. I simply didn't 24 want to keep everyone here longer than I am going to keep you 25 here already.

F546leh1

1                   Thirdly, I am sure you are wondering, well, when will 2 she decide, and I will as quickly as I can. So what I have 3 asked if I could have the transcript of these proceedings by 4 the end the day tomorrow, I will see if I can get something to 5 you at the end of the week. I don't know how we're going to do
6 that other than having sort of representative folks on a 7 telephone line when I read you my thoughts. Because I think it 8 is more important that you get an answer quickly. So we will 9 see how that works out. We'll deal with it. It may be that 10 you're so effective that I am hopelessly confused.

11                  Let's begin. Let me speak first to the movants. Who 12 is taking the laboring war for the movant?

13                  MR. BLOCKER: Your Honor, Mr. Livshiz and I are going 14 to be answering any questions you have. We have divided our 15 thoughts in terms of I am going to handle the permissive 16 argument and Mr. Livshiz will handle questions relating to the 17 mandatory withdrawal. If they are in between, we'll figure out 18 how to answer them.

19                  THE COURT: Well, I have a couple in between ones to 20 begin. I will start with Mr. Livshiz. Mr. Livshiz, please 21 stand so that there is not a monitor in front of you and also 22 if you could speak as closely to the microphone as you can. I 23 am not going to ask you to contort yourself but have that up 24 there. If we have any issues, we'll talk to you.

25                  Good morning, sir.

F5461eh1

1 MR. LIVSHIZ: Good morning.

2 THE COURT: Let's begin with the easy question. What 3 is the status of the proceedings before Judge Chapman at this 4 time?

5 MR. LIVSHIZ: Your Honor, the status of the proceeding
6 before Judge Chapman at this time is that the class cert motion
7 is being briefed. On Friday the defendants submitted a request 8 to file a sur-reply to address new issues raised in plaintiffs' 9 reply brief on class certification.

11 THE COURT: So that certification motion is not 12 decided?

13 MR. LIVSHIZ: It has not yet been decided, your Honor.

14 THE COURT: And it is your hope, sir, I sort of swoop 15 in and take it away?

16 MR. LIVSHIZ: Well, the questions necessarily posed by 17 the plaintiffs' motion for class certification raise novel 18 questions of federal law, non-bankruptcy federal law, that will 19 require termination from an Article III judge both with regard 20 to the certification of a non-opt out defendant class for 21 damages under Rule 23(b)(2) as well as albeit the time to toll 22 the statute of limitations, which is the question of first 23 impression in this Second Circuit and is a question on which 24 federal courts are unsettled nationwide.

25 THE COURT: I am going to unpack that a little bit

F5461eh1

1 later on. I guess I have a couple of antecedent questions
2 before we start getting into the mandatory permissive
3 withdrawal. You'll understand that I really only know what I
4 know from the briefing that has been submitted to me. So there
5 are questions for which I just need some clarification. There
6 has been a suggestion, and I am not going to opine on it one 7 way another, that this particular motion is an attempt at forum
8 shopping. So could you please help me understand the sequence 9 of events better. What I understand is that the complaint in 10 the adversary proceeding was filed in September of 2010 and I 11 would like to understand what happened for the next three and a 12 half years or so. I think there was a stay. I think there was 13 either encouragement or compulsion to participate in 14 alternative dispute resolution proceedings. I just would like 15 to understand what has been going on for the past three and a 16 half years.

17 MR. LIVSHIZ: Of course, your Honor. The short and 18 sweet answer is nothing happened for three and a half years
19 while the case was stayed. There was compulsion to participate 20 in alternative dispute resolution and that process has run its 21 course.

22 THE COURT: In its entirety?

23 MR. LIVSHIZ: I believe there are parties still 24 involved in mediation but the litigation has been reactivated 25 and restarted and is now moving forward including LBSF IS

F5461eh1

1 seeking to confirm a defendant class, which is the first order 2 of business.

3 THE COURT: At the time of each of the amended 4 complaints in this case was there an opportunity to object to 5 that complaint because of some -- based on some of the issues
6 that are sketched out in your motions? For example was there, 7 could there have been the analogue to a motion to dismiss based 8 on -- I don't know even know what it would be -- based on the 9 belief that B and Y was wrongly decided or something along 10 those lines. Basically I want to know -- you told me now that 11 nothing was done. Tell me please whether something could have 12 been done.

13 MR. LIVSHIZ: My understanding is no, your Honor.

14 THE COURT: I get the sense, although I could be 15 wrong, that the original complaint in this case, the 16 September 2010 complaint, had its genesis in Judge Peck's
17 decisions in B and R and Valley Rock. Other than the appeal 18 that was settled, the one that Judge McMahon certified, were 19 there any other opportunities to challenge that decision or 20 Valley Rock or the Michigan State Housing Development Authority 21 decisions?

22 MR. DeFILIPPO: Your Honor, the defendants in this 23 case were not the defendants in either Perpetual or Valley Rock 24 or the Michigan Housing case. So we have not had an 25 opportunity to challenge the underlying reasoning of Judge

F5461eh1

1 Peck's decisions in those questions.

2 THE COURT: I appreciate the clarification. Has 3 anybody had the opportunity to challenge them. For example,
4 the B and Y decision it went up and it was settled and I 5 understand that. I don't know what happened ultimately with 6 Valley Rock and I don't know what happened with Michigan State.

7 MR. BLOCKER: So the sequence is perpetual did settle, 8 your Honor. Valley Rock also settled. There was never an 9 opportunity to the appeal. I think there was an attempt to 10 appeal, but it was turned down.

11 THE COURT: There was an attempt to appeal?

12 MR. BLOCKER: To seek an interlocutory appeal that was 13 turned down. Michigan State Housing, the Michigan State 14 Housing prevailed. So there would have been opportunity for 15 Lehman to appeal.

16 THE COURT: And they did not?

17 MR. BLOCKER: Not that I know of.

18 THE COURT: I guess we wouldn't be having these 19 discussions. There are none of these other types of case that 20 might have lent themselves to appeal opportunity for Judge 21 Peck's decision or Judge Peck's thinking in B and Y?

22 MR. BLOCKER: I don't have a full view of the 23 landscape. That is probably better directed to Lehman.

24 THE COURT: I will certainly ask them.

25 MR. BLOCKER: There is enough here who are

1 representing parties who are in this proceeding.

2 THE COURT: Thank you. I will go back to Mr. Livshiz.

3 Sir, the bankruptcy court scheduling order was filed
4 in 2014, correct, July 2014?

5 MR. LIVSHIZ: Correct, your Honor.

6 THE COURT: Was there any ability to challenge the 7 scheduling order, any opportunity, or is that something that is 8 not suspectable to appeal or challenge to a reviewing court of 9 any type?

10 MR. LIVSHIZ: Well, as your Honor knows we objected to 11 scheduling proposed. We litigated. We lost. We moved forward 12 with the case, participated in class certification discovery
13 and waited for LB to file its motion for class certification.
14 When they filed their motion, that triggered -- that put at 15 issue certain questions that require an adjudication of and 16 will require necessarily consideration of non-bankruptcy
17 federal law, which is the point which we filed our motion 18 seeking withdrawal. Mindful of the need not to bother the 19 support of seriatim motions. We included in our motion
20 additional grounds for withdrawal, including whether Lehman's 21 common law claims can be applied extraterritorially as well the 22 permissive withdraw questions as to which Mr. Blocker referred 23 to.

24 THE COURT: In her decision, at least in the 25 transcript, Judge Chapman indicated that she was leaving open

F5461eh1

1 the possibility of individualized consideration of certain 2 defenses.

3 First of all, do you know what I am talking about?

4 MR. LIVSHIZ: I do.

5 THE COURT: Second of all, what does that mean?

6 MR. LIVSHIZ: What we understood it to mean is to the 7 extent one of the defendants had an argument that applied to it 8 and had individualized fact, Judge Chapman permitted those 9 defendants to raise that question. Some three defendants I 10 believe have chosen to do so and are litigating the personal 11 jurisdiction defenses before Judge Chapman.

12 THE COURT: No one is using that particular entree 13 that she has left open to argue the issues that you brought 14 before me, Bank of New York and some of those nature, the safe 15 harbor?

16 MR. LIVSHIZ: No, your Honor.

17 THE COURT: I would like to ask you a couple questions
18 about Bank of New York and Valley Rock. I suppose Michigan 19 State as well. If you prefer Mr. Blocker answer them, you will 20 let me know.

21 Tell me first what you think the safe harbor provision 22 of Section 560 applies to, Mr. Blocker.

23 MR. BLOCKER: So heres the dispute, your Honor: The 24 question is in the documents that create this swap, there is a 25 provision that creates a priority depending on certain

F5461eh1

1 conditions. Our position is that everything related to 2 liquidation or termination of the swap, which would include 3 everything related to priority provision is protected by the 4 safe harbor. So basically everything that is at issue in this 5 case is protected by the safe harbor. That is one of the 6 reasons we're interested in seeking to have the reference with 7 and have that issue decided. As your Honor pointed out, B and 8 Y was decided 2010. It has been sitting there five years 9 unreviewed by any court. We think it would end this case or 10 almost entirely end this case if it went our way.

11 THE COURT: So then how did Judge Peck get it wrong?

12 MR. BLOCKER: Here is what Judge Peck ruled and then 13 we'll tell you why we think it is wrong.

14 THE COURT: I promise you I did read his decision.

15 MR. BLOCKER: Judge Peck held two things. He said in 16 B and Y there was something called Condition 44, which I didn't 17 look at the underlying cases, but I suspect it is analogous to 18 what we have here. Judge Peck tells those weren't part of the 19 swap agreement itself and therefore weren't covered by the safe 20 harbor under 560. So that is one basis for his ruling. The 21 other basis for his ruling was he said essentially even if it 22 was part of the swap that it didn't relate to a determination, 23 liquidation or acceleration. He said it was somehow 24 unconnected to that. We think that decision is wrong and we 25 think it is wrong because if we look at the definition of

F5461eh1

1 "swap" in the Bankruptcy Code, which I will get to the 2 provision 10153(b) sub A, if you look at that particular 3 provision it says that a swap agreement is supposed to be 4 broadly interpreted to include all of the documents. So Judge 5 Peck never explained why in the three sentences he gave on the 6 safe harbor the swap prior to the Condition 44 wasn't part of 7 the swap agreement, but we think that is plainly wrong.

8 Second, as a simple matter, it has to be part of the 9 method of liquidating or accelerating the swap because that is 10 how you determine first who is going to get any of the money.

11 So we think the decision is wrong. If it were to come 12 out the way we think it does, I think this case is over.

13 THE COURT: You repeatedly indicated these decisions
14 are unprecedeted. Had no one else ever found analogous 15 provisions of swap agreements to be perhaps subject to ipso 16 facto rules, or is it that his interpretation of the safe 17 harbor is where you parted company with Judge Peck?

18 MR. BLOCKER: No, we have other disputes with Judge 19 Peck. Judge Peck's opinion -- look, we're not criticizing 20 Judge Peck. We just disagree with his opinion. We also 21 disagree with the notion that the later filing by LBSF in its 22 bankruptcy, which was two weeks later, constituted a unitary 23 filing event.

24 Putting that to one side, your Honor, to answer your 25 question I am not aware that the safe harbor has ever been

F546leh1

1 litigate in the context of a swap agreement. Lehman can 2 correct me if I am wrong. This was a seminal decision or the 3 first decision -- maybe seminal is the wrong word -- on the 4 topic that hasn't been reviewed in the last five years.

5 THE COURT: The decisions themselves, B and Y and 6 Valley Rock are different. They are necessarily because of the 7 procedural context in which each arises. They are also 8 different when contrasted with Michigan State Housing
9 Development Authority. What are the factual differences if you 10 know between these cases that explain the different result in 11 that case? I'm trying to harmonize the three of them and I had 12 a little bit of difficulty but I am not a bankruptcy judge. It 13 may be something beyond me.

14 MR. BLOCKER: I don't think I will be able to 15 harmonize them because we don't think they are harmonizable.
16 We don't think that is the case. Let me talk about the first 17 two. I think B and Y and Valley Rock are fairly similar. You 18 have similar provisions, similar disputes. The reason Michigan
19 State Housing was different and why it came out a different way 20 is what was at issue there was at method by which liquidation
21 would take place. So the question there was did you use market 22 quotation or some other method to liquidate the -- to make the 23 payout. Judge Peck found that in that decision that that 24 particular clause was covered by the safe harbor because it was 25 part of the liquidation. We would say, your Honor, and I think

F5461eh1

1 it is true and the reason you're having a hard time harmonizing 2 these is because the two cases that he decided at the 3 beginning, Michigan State Housing, they don't make a lot of 4 sense in our view when you put them together. It seemed like 5 the priority provisions are all part of the swap, the method of 6 paying out the priority provisions is part of the swap.
7 Dividing up between the two doesn't make a whole lot of sense.
8 I cannot help you really harmonize them. I think they are just 9 flatout inconsistent.

10 THE COURT: To the degree to which Judge Chapman has 11 indicated Judge Peck's prior decisions are law of the case but 12 then also with the proviso that of course he is going to have 13 decide each case on the facts, why are you so worried that she 14 is going to stringently adhere to B and Y if you think it is 15 wrong? There is the subsequent decision. She will have to 16 contend with that as well, is she not?

17 MR. BLOCKER: Well, Judge Peck's opinion in Michigan 18 State Housing suggests that the cases are harmonizeable and has 19 a section at the end explaining why he thinks the B and N and 20 Valley Rock decisions are not inconsistent with his decision 21 Michigan State Housing.

22 I actually disagree with your Honor. I don't think -- 23 what Judge Chapman is going have to decide is essentially do I 24 agree with Judge Peck or not on the issue of whether for 25 example the safe harbor protected activity that took place

F5461eh1

1 here. She has already said not once but in our view twice that 2 she views that as law of the case. If it is law of the case 3 we're spinning our wheels down at the bankruptcy court because 4 we'll get the same outcome as we got from Judge Peck.

5 THE COURT: Your other point, which I think is 6 apparent from your brief is you would prefer not to do that 7 after going through what I will say is the drama of a class 8 certification process?

9 MR. BLOCKER: That's right. Your Honor, you have to 10 sort of put yourself in our shoes. We have been in this case 11 since 2010. For the last five years we have had no ability to 12 file a motion to dismiss to try to get out or even to try to 13 argue B and Y was wrongly decide. We have been trapped in this 14 case. So what we would like to go through a bankruptcy -- go 15 through the bankruptcy proceeding, which is likely to have the 16 same outcome as B and Y and Valley Rock given Judge Chapman's
17 comments about the law of the case? From an efficiency 18 standpoint to us that doesn't make a lot of sense. We have 19 never understood why Lehman thinks it makes more sense to go 20 through that process rather than to have that issue litigated.

21 THE COURT: I will talk about that in a little bit. I 22 have some views of it. For me it is a little bit easier to 23 focus on the decisions with which you take issue and then I
24 will get to that point. Are the provisions that are at issue 25 in this case to the extent that commonalities can be discerned

F5461eh1

1 among them, are they more likely ones in Michigan State Housing 2 or are they more like the ones in B and Y or can it not simply 3 fall into one of the categories?

4 MR. BLOCKER: As a litigation matter, it is more like 5 B and Y and Valley Rock in the following sense: The dispute in 6 Michigan State Housing concerned the method by which you value
7 the amount paid out at the end. So it is a dispute about 8 whether use of market quotation or another method to value the 9 amounts that were going to be distributed. What happened in B 10 and Y and Valley Rock is really the antecedent question of 11 Carlos priority provisions, ipso facto clauses and so forth 12 protected by the safe harbor. It is really at least at the 13 motion to dismiss stage our dispute is much more like B and Y
14 and Valley Rock than it is like Michigan State Housing.

15 THE COURT: A few moments ago you said to me that 16 among the things with which you disagree with Judge Peck were 17 his decision to sort of aggregate the bankruptcy filing dates.
18 I saw that language and I also saw that he seemed to make this 19 a -- I think sui generis appeared in the decision or there was 20 some discussion how unique this was. I do understand your 21 disagreement with that. I understand your disagreement was 22 with what we have been talking about. I thought as well in 23 your briefs there was some discussion about your belief that 24 Judge Peck may have disregarded U.K. law in the process. I 25 didn't really see that. I guess what I saw from the decision

F5461eh1

1 was that he took pains to note what the U.K. courts had 2 decided, what he had decided, and he limited himself to 3 deciding only the declaratory portions of the B and Y issue 4 with a view as I understood it to try to work together with the 5 U.K. courts.

6 Am I misinterpreting that from his decision?

7 MR. BLOCKER: No, I think that is fair. When we 8 talked about inconsistencies with English courts, I mean the 9 swaps at issue in B and Y and I think were governed by English 10 law so there was always going to be a question of to pay 11 attention to American bankruptcy law or to pay attention to 12 English law. Judge Peck thought it was important to pay 13 attention to American bankruptcy law and that was after the 14 high court in England had already ruled that swaps of the 15 priority provisions were enforced.

16 THE COURT: My recollection is that at least one of 17 the litigants in B and Y or Valley Rock conceded that what I am 18 calling the flip clauses or ipso facto agreements under the 19 Bankruptcy Code and focused their energies instead whether the 20 safe harbor applied. What I understood from the parties here 21 is that concession is not being made; is that correct?

22 MR. BLOCKER: We're not conceding that, your Honor, 23 the safe harbor question is really -- even if you were to 24 assume it was a ipso facto clause, the safe harbor provision is 25 where some of the action is at. The reason we're not conceding

F5461eh1

1 is on the first point has to do with unitary filing point.
2 Judge Peck said LBHI had filed two weeks earlier made a 3 difference when a lot of these swaps were terminated long 4 before -- not long before -- two weeks LBSF filed for 5 bankruptcy.

6 THE COURT: I don't know whether Mr. Livshiz wants to 7 add to that. No, he is fine. He looks like he had an 8 undelivered argument. I wanted to make sure he had that 9 opportunity.

10 Are there other distinctions among the swap agreements
11 in this case that make those decisions -- B and Y, Valley Rock, 12 and perhaps Michigan State -- less law of the casee there to go 13 with your harmonizeable that we're making up for purposes of 14 this argument.

15 MR. BLOCKER: You and I can adopt that for today. The 16 answer is I don't know. Here is the reason I don't know: I 17 have not recently dug into the briefs of B and Y to figure out
18 what the underlying documents look like. But when Judge 19 Peck -- at the very end of his opinion when Judge Peck talked 20 about the safe harbor, he says that the documents -- that the 21 Condition 44 was not part of the swap agreement. But his whole 22 opinion on this is three sentences. He never explains why that 23 is. I don't know to what extent our provisions are the same or 24 similar. I just don't know without looking at the underlying 25 documents. The other thing I would say, your Honor, there are

F5461eh1

1 also -- and we pointed this in our class certification -- there 2 are differences among the documents even with respect to the 3 defendants. So there is not going be necessarily one answer 4 fits all.

5 THE COURT: Going back a moment to Judge Chapman's
6 statements about her views on Judge Peck decision. As I 7 understood it these were being decided in the context of this 8 same bankruptcy? These are different adversary proceedings?

9 MR. BLOCKER: Correct.

10 THE COURT: So would it not have been odd for her to 11 say she was going to reexamine or reconsider what Judge Peck 12 had done?

13 MR. BLOCKER: To some extent I guess that may be true.
14 I think that bolsters our argument for seeking withdraw to the 15 reference. There are cases certainly, your Honor, that talk 16 about law in the case, certainly within the adversary then 17 cross-adversaries within the same bankruptcy. I don't have 18 those cases ready at command. I agree with you that it is not 19 all that surprising that she would say in the context of this 20 particular case, I am not going to reexamine an issue that was 21 decided earlier. I don't think it is a practical matter that 22 she is not going to try to second guess one of her colleagues
23 that she served with for many years. We understand that going 24 in. What is the implication of that? That is what your Honor 25 has to decide. Given what is at stake here, and this a case

F5461eh1

1 with billions of dollars at stake. There are dozens of lawyers
2 in the courtroom representing 70 or so different defendants.
3 The question is since we have those decisions already, since we 4 already have the guidance from the bankruptcy court on these 5 issues, what purpose is served by continuing to litigate these 6 issue in the bankruptcy court as opposed to having them
7 reviewed for the first time in five years?

8 THE COURT: I guess the response to that would be that 9 again it has been argued to me that these agreements are 10 themselves different. So I guess it is not as clear to me that 11 while adopting perhaps the legal reasoning of the B and Y and 12 Valley Rock decisions that she is necessarily going to come out 13 the same way. I suppose one could argue to her that Michigan
14 State Housing Development requires her to do something 15 different or maybe represents an revolution or something else.
16 So I guess I am trying to figure out how forgone a conclusion
17 this is. Let's be clear. I appreciated what you are talking 18 about in terms of the time that you waited, I understand, and 19 the time that you believe you'll have to wait as a consequence 20 the certification motion. That I get entirely. I am really on 21 a more limited point now, which is how sure are you that she 22 has made up her mind on the issue of the safe harbor provision?

23 MR. BLOCKER: Judge, I obviously cannot get inside of 24 Judge Chapman's mind. I don't know the answer to that. I can 25 only tell you what I have read. I hope your Honor will

F546leh1

1 appreciate I am little bit on a razor's edge here because I 2 don't want to make a concession because if we don't win the 3 motion, we have to go back to the bankruptcy court and we don't 4 want Lehman saying, Well, fait accompli.

5 THE COURT: Fair enough.

6 MR. BLOCKER: Let's put it this way: Those decisions 7 are a huge thumb on the scale. I don't understand -- and 8 especially if you look at the safe harbor provisions. I don't 9 see if you do take -- if she is not going to revisit, Judge 10 Chapman is not going to revisit the safe harbor rule. Assuming 11 that the documents are similar, and I don't know because I 12 haven't done any comparison, at a minimum that is a huge thumb 13 on the scale. It means that what we are likely to have is 14 we'll file motions to dismiss but if she follows those, there 15 is a good chance they will be denied. If they are denied, 16 we'll be in the bankruptcy court for a couple years. So we'll 17 be back here 2017, '18. We'll have to go through eight years
18 before we can get Judge Peck's decision reviewed. So I don't 19 know the answer to the question about how sure I am she will 20 rule against us. We'll take a run at trying to convince her it 21 is wrong, but like I said it is at a minimum a huge thumb on 22 the scale.

23 THE COURT: I am going to change your metaphor. Let's 24 say it is an impediment, a tough row to hoe.

25 MR. BLOCKER: Any of those analogies.

F5461eh1

1                   THE COURT: Before I go back to Mr. Livshiz, let me 2 ask you this: I would like to understand with what degree of 3 granularity I am to examine the legal issues here. I have read 4 your arguments. I have read obviously everything here. I have 5 23 single spaced pages of notes if it makes you feel any 6 better. I have been preparing for this. I would like to 7 understand do I need to make a preliminary determination about 8 the viability of the certification motion, or is it just enough 9 to note that there are significant non-bankruptcy issues 10 implicated if indeed there are?

11                   MR. BLOCKER: Mr. Livshiz can correct me if I am 12 wrong. This is under his territory. I don't think you need to 13 decide the legal issues. What you need to do on the mandatory 14 side is make an assessment that they meet the test substantial 15 enough to warrant mandatory withdrawal. On the permissive side 16 you don't need to weigh in on any of the legal issues. It is 17 an efficient column.

18                   THE COURT: One last question. You've asked me to 19 appreciate things from the defendants' perspective. I am sure 20 Lehman and their counsel will do the same. I will ask you to 21 appreciate the lot of any judge, district or bankruptcy. The 22 concern that I have is that Judge Chapman obviously knows 23 bankruptcy law better than I do. It may be that she may make 24 mistakes in the adversary proceeding either during the 25 certification process or during the resolution of the merits.

F546leh1

1 I am not going to concede that, but I can open up myself to the 2 theoretical possibility it could happen. The point the 3 standing order of reference that I understood exists in 4 district is to let her and my concern is the converse is for me 5 to basically take over the bankruptcy case and get involved at 6 a level of micromanaging I don't think I want to do. Why can't 7 I let her do this?

8 MR. BLOCKER: Well, let me -- this is the way I would 9 think about it, your Honor, and ask you to think about it. I 10 have used Judge Peck's name and Judge Chapman's name. Really 11 it is the bankruptcy court. It doesn't matter if it is a new 12 judge or an old judge. The bottom line in the usual instance 13 where someone is asking a district court do withdraw the 14 reference, there is no guidance. If there is no guidance of 15 course it is going be the case that the bankruptcy judge could 16 make mistakes. I am not saying they would. The bankruptcy 17 judge might make mistakes. We do let that happen and then they 18 come up to the District Court if one of the parties wants to 19 appeal. The Court has already weighed in on issues, on the key 20 bankruptcy issues that matter. Now what we need is a District 21 Court to decide not only the issues on mandatory withdrawal, 22 that affect of both the main adversary proceeding and the 23 questions on class certification, but what we really need is 24 more guidance on the standard. Think about it, your Honor, why 25 have years of proceedings down in the bankruptcy court with a

F5461eh1

1 standard that may or may not be correct? Even in Judge Peck's 2 opinion he acknowledges that his rulings are controversial, 3 that he understands they are going to create a lot of 4 controversy. It makes more sense to get that sorted out now.
5 This isn't the run of the mill request for withdrawal.

6 THE COURT: Let me stop you for a moment, sir. I do 7 recall Judge Peck saying that at the end of the decision, but 8 for better or worse we're here five years later and there isn't 9 a well established body of case law. It may be because these 10 particular events were sufficiently singular but no one has 11 managed to weigh in this on them. I had this fantasy that I 12 was going to look up the Bank of New York decision and find all 13 sorts of cases commenting and there is not. There are not.

14 MR. BLOCKER: The sum total of the work is Judge 15 Peck's later opinions is what it comes down to.

16 THE COURT: Right. For everyone in this courtroom
17 certainly there would be a desire for resolution and I 18 understand that. In terms of this wreaking havoc on the 19 Bankruptcy Code or bending the Republic or something along 20 those lines, it hasn't happened yet because no one else seems 21 to be dealing with it. I just don't know what to do with that 22 knowledge.

23 MR. BLOCKER: I think your Honor has to conclude, 24 though, that it is going to wreak havoc on the Republic. I 25 don't think you need to make that conclusion or to grant our

F546leh1

1 motion at least on the permissive side. At the end of the day
2 what you have is this is a dispute where millions of dollars 3 are going to be spent on discovery and other things that we 4 think can be taken care of right at the front end if somebody 5 looks at the safe harbor with a fresh eye. I am fully 6 sympathetic to Judge Chapman's play. She has got two, three 7 opinions now from one of her colleagues and I can understand 8 her desire not to and want to overrule one of her colleagues.

9 THE COURT: I am laughing, sir, because you are 10 presupposing that any reticence she has is because she doesn't 11 want to hurt the feelings of Judge Peck. Maybe she agrees with 12 his rationale. Let's not put ourselves in her mind.

13 The issue is could she if she wanted to certify this 14 issue to somebody, either district judge or the Second Circuit?
15 Is there some way for her resolve the merits issue that you 16 think is so dispositive and thereby save for herself the drama 17 of class certification?

18 MR. BLOCKER: I don't know the answer to that. If 19 there is some mechanism she can say, Judge Failla, please 20 decide?

21 THE COURT: It doesn't have to be me really.

22 MR. BLOCKER: Well, we have you here. Is there such a 23 mechanism? I don't really know. I would canvass my 24 colleagues.

25 THE COURT: I am seeing no's all over. A girl can

F546leh1

1 hope.

2 Let me talk to Mr. Livshiz for a while.

3 MR. LIVSHIZ: Your Honor, if I could augment or 4 supplement Mr. Blocker's point.

5 THE COURT: Absolutely.

6 MR. LIVSHIZ: Short of the Republic following, there 7 are more specific issues here that would justify looking at 8 this with new eyes in the near term. This is not the first 9 time this issue has played out in this district and a few years
10 ago in 2001, Enron filed for bankruptcy and brought a case
11 against a significant number of defendants. Those defendants 12 much like the defendants here moved to dismiss on the basis of 13 a safe harbor. Judge Gonzalez in that case denied the initial 14 motion to dismiss. The defendants were forced to for years
15 litigate the question through discovery in the bankruptcy
16 court. Many settled for significant amounts of money.
17 Ultimately when the question did get to the District Court, the 18 decision under the safe harbor was reversed. That case then 19 made it to the Second Circuit which confirmed McMahon's 20 reversal of Judge Gonzalez. That in some sense demonstrates 21 what is some level of stakes and provides a demonstration of 22 the point that Mr. Blocker was making. Looking at these 23 questions now can save a significant amount of time and money 24 for all involved and then would be a reason we would submit to 25 withdraw the reference for cause.

F5461eh1

1                   THE COURT: Thank you for the thoughts. Let me ask 2 you some questions about mandatory withdrawal. Absent the 3 class certification proposal, would you be seeking withdrawal 4 of the reference? If you had asked Judge Chapman to invert the 5 order of the scheduling order and had you succeeded, would we 6 be here now?

7                   MR. LIVSHIZ: Your Honor, we would be -- well, 8 depending on what exactly of these we have tried to do, we 9 would potentially be on the extraterritoriality offense that 10 certain defendants have. That defense -- their assertion of 11 common law claims seeking targeting conduct abroad necessarily 12 asks you to invoke your authority under the Rules of Decision 13 Act and that is the question of first impression countrywide of 14 systemic accordance for the federal courts who adjudicate
15 common law claims all the time. That would have been a basis 16 for withdrawal, your Honor, that we would have made. As 17 matters played out, we have obviously objected to the 18 scheduling order. We lost. We moved on. I will have to 19 certify defendant class and the way we seek to do it and the 20 reasons for which we seek to do it necessarily pose questions 21 of federal law that bring us here today.

22                   THE COURT: I am going to hold the Rules of Decision 23 Act to the side for the moment because that does interest me 24 but we talked about class certification so we'll focus on that.
25 I understand your disappointment that class certification

F5461eh1

1 precedes consideration on the merits, but just thinking about 2 the classes that I have certified or not certified as fate
3 would have it, it is typically the case, is it not, that you 4 deal with the certification issue first before dealing with the 5 merits?

6 MR. LIVSHIZ: Well, your Honor, normally defendants 7 get to make a motion to dismiss before certification is 8 decided. That is the typical process in which these things
9 run. The unique feature here is not only it it a class action 10 but it is a defendant class action. That poses certain 11 questions that require an answer.

12 THE COURT: I guess what was the alternative for her?
13 You can imagine, I could imagine that she would not want to 14 receive dozens or scores of motions raising the issues. What 15 you've said to me in your briefing is that District Courts, and 16 I suspect bankruptcy courts too, are you capable of handling 17 complex cases. What are you contemplating? Are you 18 contemplating someone taking the lead and everybody else either 19 trying to distinguish themselves from that case or sign on to 20 it or somehow preclusive or were you thinking of dozens of 21 motions to dismiss or dozens of motions to reconsider B and Y?

22 MR. LIVSHIZ: God, no, your Honor.

23 THE COURT: You understand you only have to write one 24 of them. Understand we are on the receiving dozens.

25 MR. LIVSHIZ: I sympathize, your Honor. They are

F5461eh1

1 numerous ways in which federal courts can manage their docket.
2 Nothing requires Judge Chapman to consider dozens of motions.
3 In fact as defendants have demonstrated in objecting to the 4 scheduling order in the briefing before this case and indeed 5 opposing class certification, defendants are capable working 6 together to submit one -- to make a limited number of 7 submissions.

8 THE COURT: There was a group of 77, which I don't 9 think is the sum total still in the case?

10 MR. LIVSHIZ: That's correct, your Honor. However, a 11 class certification is a case in point where the defendants'
12 opposition to L and B's motion to class certification was filed 13 not only by the group of 77 but also by the defendants outside 14 of that group.

15 THE COURT: How many?

16 MR. LIVSHIZ: Nevertheless we had one common 17 opposition brief.

18 THE COURT: One opposition?

19 MR. BLOCKER: One opposition brief in addition to 20 defendants asked to invoke Judge Chapman's step out of line 21 provision to seeking to make a statute of limitations defense, 22 which they believe unique to them because of certain factual 23 matters. When she considered that question, she asked those 24 defendants to file a supplemental submission of opposing class 25 certification explaining how this statute of limitation

F546leh1

1 question bears on the certification question. There, too, your 2 Honor defendants submitted a single submission on behalf 3 several defendants invoking that defense.

4 THE COURT: From the transcripts that I have read -- 5 please, understand they have not been provided to me in their 6 totality. I have snippets -- I do think Judge Chapman is 7 understandably concerned about management of the case given the 8 sheer number of defendants. So while I appreciate what you've 9 just now told me, which is that when necessary and when 10 appropriate the defense team can act as one and file a unitary 11 brief or a primary brief with a couple of subsidiary ones.

12 Did you make those arguments to her? What kind 13 assurance could you give her that it wouldn't become unwieldily 14 to have all of you in the case in a nonclass action format?

15 MR. LIVSHIZ: During the schedule -- the hearing on 16 the scheduling order defendants did represent that they would 17 work together to file the minimum amount of paper possible and 18 if anything the pattern of conduct of defendants indicates that 19 they are true to their word.

20 THE COURT: If she had said, This certification thing 21 is mighty difficult and I am concerned about it but I am not 22 concerned at least I believe I have the ability and the 23 understanding of how to deal with these bankruptcy issues 24 instead I will order that a single brief be filed from the 25 defense, could that have been done?

F546leh1

1                   MR. LIVSHIZ: Your Honor, I don't know if a single 2 brief could have been done.

3                   THE COURT: A small number of briefs.

4                   MR. LIVSHIZ: I think that could have been done, your 5 Honor, yes.

6                   THE COURT: That would have obviated the need for this 7 motion?

8                   MR. LIVSHIZ: Well, your Honor, from our perspective 9 we believe that that is the way the case should proceed, 10 specifically that defendant should move to dismiss and filing a 11 small number of briefs and then to the extent anything remains 12 of this case we could confront the rather difficult authority 13 question of class certification. It was Lehman's insistence of 14 the alternative offered. It was Lehman's insistence on seeking 15 certification of the defendant not opt-out class to consider 16 questions of liability, which is certainly, your Honor, a 17 question of unsettled question. Indeed, a question in 18 misimpression in this circuit and that triggered us coming here 19 today.

20                  THE COURT: I am sorry. My question wasn't precise.
21 I will try to make it a more precise one. There are several 22 reasons that you folks have made the motion to withdraw and I 23 understood one of them to be a concern that you're going to 24 have to go through this lengthy certification process and with 25 all its attendant issues and then deal with the merits of the

F5461eh1

1 case. But if that particular concern of yours was removed,
2 because for example the judge had agreed with you that a 3 limited number of briefs were enough, would you nonetheless be 4 arguing for withdrawal of the reference based on for example 5 your concern that Judge Chapman's statement about her views as 6 to Judge Peck's decision merited withdrawal of the case?

7 MR. LIVSHIZ: Well, that is when we would be making 8 the permissive motion to withdraw. The motion is for mandatory 9 withdrawal.

10 THE COURT: It seems to me that you're presupposing
11 that she is going to grant the certification motion. Are you?

12 MR. LIVSHIZ: No, your Honor. We're not presupposing.
13 Our view is that that motion must be decided in the first 14 instance by an Article III court because that motion 15 necessarily raises constitutional and other questions of 16 federal non-bankruptcy law.

17 THE COURT: Let me explain a concern that I have with 18 your arguments. There is a disconnect in saying to me that 19 there is a basis for mandatory withdrawal of the reference 20 based on the prevalence of federal non-bankruptcy law. I 21 understand that argument. Then you sort of comfort me or try 22 to comfort me by saying I can obviate all those very difficult 23 issues under rule of decision act if I would decide the merits 24 issues first. So I don't know how to describe it other than to 25 say there is a disconnect. So because the merits issues are

F5461eh1

1 the thing that I am at least you would argue less well suited 2 to do given that I am not the bankruptcy judge here. It is 3 very weird to say you should withdraw on this basis but then 4 not decide these issues. Please help me decide that.

5 MR. LIVSHIZ: Well, I understand there are two 6 separate bases and while there may be the same motion, they are 7 a little bit different. On the mandatory side of things we ask 8 your Honor to withdraw to consider these questions. I note 9 parenthetically that for a significant number of defendants
10 among them looking at $1.5 billion in damages Lehman seeks, it 11 is a determination of the questions and the mandatory 12 withdrawal will lead to complete dismissal and would 13 significantly change the dynamic of the case. Separately we 14 requested that your Honor -- again, in a way as to obviate the 15 need to make seriatim motions, we asked your Honor to exercise 16 your discretion to withdraw the threshold of bankruptcy and 17 safe harbor issues. It is not that we're asking you to 18 withdraw and not decide those issues. The point of the 19 permissive motion is to have you decide the issues.

20 THE COURT: I want to make sure I understand what you 21 said. I understand the mandatory withdrawal argument. You are 22 asking me to withdraw those arguments specific to B and Y and 23 not certification arguments? Can you maybe give your answer 24 one more time because I want to make sure I understand it.

25 MR. LIVSHIZ: Sure, your Honor. This is spelled out a

F5461eh1

1 little more clearly in our brief on page 4. We're asking your 2 Honor to withdraw the case and we're asking your Honor to 3 withdraw the case to -- what you do once you withdraw the case 4 is in some sense what you would like. If you would like to 5 consider class certification first, we would ask your Honor -- 6 we believe that requires withdrawal and we would ask your Honor 7 to decide the certification motion and adjudicate those 8 questions of constitutional law. To the extent that your Honor 9 withdraws the motion and is inclined to in the first instance
10 consider the validity or the correctness of Judge Peck's 11 decision in B and Y or Perpetual, we would ask your Honor to 12 decide those questions and then to the extent that 13 certification is needed decide those questions as well.

14 THE COURT: I appreciate the clarification. I will 15 change topics. One of the things that Lehman argues is that 16 the comparative lack of individualized responses mean
17 something. They suggest it means several things. Perhaps a 18 recognition of the predominance of the flip clause issue.
19 Perhaps the absence of an individualized incentive for each 20 defendant to pursue separate litigation. Although I wonder if 21 that second one may be belied by the group here. Is it true 22 that there have been few individualized responses and if that 23 is true to what do you attribute that.

24 MR. LIVSHIZ: Judge Chapman's scheduling order?

25 THE COURT: Yes, sir.

F546leh1

1                   MR. LIVSHIZ: The unique defenses that defendants have 2 raised is jurisdictional defenses and those are moving --

3                   THE COURT: Please slow down.

4                   MR. LIVSHIZ: Those are moving forward. There is a 5 number of individualized defenses that various defendants have 6 whether it is extraterritoriality or statute of limitations or 7 questions specific to the transaction themselves. Those issues
8 haven't been raised because we're not permitted to raise them 9 at this point. Class certification is what proceeds first.

10                  THE COURT: One of the arguments you make, sir, is 11 that a basis for mandatory withdrawal is the interaction or 12 implication of the Rules Enabling Act and the due process
13 clause. Let's put to the side for the moment Lehman's argument 14 regarding commerce clause. Can't the argument always be made 15 that any time a court is interpreting a rule such as Rule 23, 16 it is always doing that against the backdrop of the due process
17 clause or the Rules Enabling Act? What I mean is if the Rules
18 Enabling Act doesn't enhance rights and the due process law 19 requires process, it seems to me that there are always present.
20 So it seems a little odd to me suggesting this case in 21 particular brings those issues into a sharper relief than you 22 would have any in other case.

23                  (Continued on next page)

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: You can respond to that, please.

2                   MR. LIVSHIZ: Sure, your Honor. I think Judge
3 Rakoff's decision in principle is instructive at some point.
4 There are certain due process issues that come up in which the 5 bound of federal law are set. Specific jurisdiction would be 6 an example and indeed defendants in this case have proceeded 7 with their personal jurisdiction defenses before Judge Chapman.

8                   One of the cases that was cited by the plaintiffs 9 raises the question of whether withdrawal is permitted to 10 consider a jury demand. That's another area where federal law 11 is well plotted. What I would submit, your Honor, is what is 12 present in this case is a unique defense, which is raised by 13 LBSF's attempt to invoke American Pipe Tolling in the context
14 of a defendants class action. That is a question, your Honor, 15 which despite the fact that the Federal Rules appear in every 16 case, as your Honor knows, is one which has not yet been 17 considered in the Second Circuit. It is also one on which the 18 federal courts nationwide are sharply split.

19                   THE COURT: So what you're arguing is that because of 20 that, because of the particular framework, this is a question 21 of interpretation rather than application?

22                   MR. LIVSHIZ: Correct, your Honor. We're saying that 23 this is a question that requires this Court to interpret the 24 Rules Enabling Act in this context and it's a question that 25 requires substantial consideration of that question.

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: Okay. Could you comment on Lehman's
2 argument that cases like Stern or Chateaugay made clear the due 3 process issues are not a basis for mandatory withdrawal.

4                   MR. LIVSHIZ: Yes, your Honor. I'd be happy to. In 5 fact, those two cases are interesting in what they require.
6 They concern the consideration of bankruptcy court processes 7 and what a bankruptcy court is permitted or not permitted to 8 do. We are asking your Honor to consider cases which concern 9 the question of whether what federal courts writ large are 10 permitted or not permitted to do.

11                  So, for example, take Chateaugay, your Honor. That 12 case concerns whether or not in setting a bar date order -- a 13 bar date is an order that requires creditors to file claims in 14 bankruptcy court, your Honor, provided adequate notice. This 15 is a question that bankruptcy courts confront all the time and 16 it is a question that the Chateaugay Court ruled is well within 17 the ambit of bankruptcy court consideration.

18                  Similarly, in Extended Stay, the Stern issue, your 19 Honor, concerns whether a bankruptcy court has authority to 20 issue, finally adjudicate certain claims. We are asking your 21 Honor to consider the question of whether a federal court, 22 whether it's considering a bankruptcy issue, an intellectual 23 property issue, a securities issues, can render certain 24 determinations. American Pipe Tolling I would submit is a good 25 example of that in that this is a question of systemic

F54FLEH2

1 importance to claims adjudicated by federal courts. It is a 2 question that will arise, your Honor, whether the defendant 3 class is in a bankruptcy proceeding or a defendant class is 4 brought in an intellectual property context where, for example, 5 what are, to use a colloquial term an intellectual property 6 troll files a defendant class action against a bevy of 7 infringers not necessarily naming them. So in that regard, I
8 submit, your Honor, the question is starkly different.

9 THE COURT: I mean, as to some of the questions I have 10 that follow, they come from the same place, and that is it 11 seems to me that, and this again ties into the granularity
12 question I asked of your colleague, it seems to me that one way 13 of looking at this in terms of mandatory withdrawal is a 14 question of how much of this is asking Judge Chapman to apply 15 existing law and how much is asking her to interpret the law
16 and the more it gets to interpretation then it seems the more 17 substantial it is and then arguably, at least you would argue 18 to me, the more there is a need for mandatory withdrawal.

19 I guess the concern I have is you could always argue 20 that every case is different, that there's something about the 21 facts of that case or the procedure of that case that make it 22 different, and so therefore every case is in essence an 23 interpretation of another case because it is building on or 24 evolving the existing case law. So what you've just now said 25 to me is that there are cases in this category, there are cases

1 in this category but here it's almost a confluence of these 2 issues is what I'm -- American Pipe exists. There is case law
3 on the issue. And defendant class actions exist, they do, 4 because they've been -- they've been certified. So you're 5 saying but this case is different because it is both American 6 Pipe in the defendant class action context. So at some point I 7 just question whether the fact that a particular case has not 8 been decided yet, the fact that there is not something on all 9 fours with the issue requires mandatory withdrawal of the 10 references. If, for example, sir, there is something that is 11 on all three's with the issue or on all two's with the issue, 12 must I withdraw?

13 MR. LIVSHIZ: Well, your Honor, there's obviously a 14 line here. And courts in this circuit have consistently held 15 that where a question is raised as one of first impression or 16 where the federal law is unsettled, that gets you over the 17 barrier to requiring substantial interpretation. That is the 18 case here and I would argue, your Honor, that when you take 19 American Pipe Tolling, which exists in a plaintiff context and 20 when you take a defendant class action, which as your Honor 21 pointed out do exist and you lump them together that doesn't 22 exist and that requires a brand new interpretation. And if 23 your Honor looks at the rationale for American Pipe Tolling
24 that the Supreme Court provided, that rationale specifically 25 focused on the fact that an initial complaint filed by a

F54FLEH2

1 plaintiff puts the defendant on notice of claims as against 2 that defendant and the tolling mechanism facilitates some 3 sanity in the district courts by avoiding the need for 4 plaintiffs to file numerous individual intervention motions or 5 opt-out complaints.

6 That rationale does not apply at all in the defendant 7 class context, your Honor, we would submit, because the entire 8 concept of a defendant class that does not name defendants, the 9 unnamed defendants do not have notice and are therefore 10 invoking American Pipe Tolling would rob them of their right to 11 be free of stale claims, your Honor. We would submit that 12 answering that question is wholesale interpretation of what the 13 law does and does not allow.

14 THE COURT: All right. Let me switch, please, to the 15 Rules of Decision Act.

16 MR. LIVSHIZ: Sure, your Honor.

17 THE COURT: How important are these state law causes 18 of action to the adversary proceeding complaint?

19 MR. LIVSHIZ: Well, your Honor, I'm not going to 20 anticipate to speak for Lehman Brothers.

21 THE COURT: I'll just take your argument, sir.

22 MR. LIVSHIZ: They must be important enough.

23 Otherwise they would not have been alleged, your Honor, and 24 actually the territoriality question it poses is of tremendous 25 importance because claims such as this are alleged all the time

1 in the federal court.

2 THE COURT: If they agree to drop those claims, does 3 it vitiate one of your arguments? Let me ask the question 4 differently.

5 MR. LIVSHIZ: Sure.

6 THE COURT: Is there a Rules of Decision Act argument
7 for the Bankruptcy Code provisions themselves?

8 MR. LIVSHIZ: No, there is not a Rules of Decision
9 Act--

10 THE COURT: There is simply an extra territoriality 11 argument?

12 MR. LIVSHIZ: Correct.

13 THE COURT: Is that something Judge Chapman can 14 handle?

15 MR. LIVSHIZ: That is a bankruptcy question. We would 16 submit, your Honor, to the extent that you, and this is a point 17 that LBSF did not oppose their opposition brief, to the extent 18 that you do withdrawal on the basis of the Rules of Decision 19 Act you should exercise your discretion in regard to extra 20 territoriality questions to the Bankruptcy Code itself, if only 21 to obviate the need for the parties to submit six briefs as 22 opposed to three. One additional point, your Honor, if I may.

23 THE COURT: Of course.

24 MR. LIVSHIZ: In Judge Berman's decision in the 25 LightSquared case, your Honor, he notes that the fact that

F54FLEH2

1 certain affirmative defenses may not ultimately need to be 2 adjudicated is not a reason not to withdraw the reference and 3 in fact withdraws the reference on the need to consider a 4 federal question of non-bankruptcy law.

5 Similarly, in the Schneiderman case, your Honor, Judge 6 Rakoff withdrew the question to consider a question of federal 7 law that ultimately did not have to be adjudicated and 8 nevertheless Judge Rakoff's view of it was that the possibility 9 that that issue would have to be ultimately decided warranted
10 withdrawal.

11 THE COURT: Okay. I want to go back to Rule 23 for a 12 moment.

13 MR. LIVSHIZ: Absolutely.

14 THE COURT: This is again a question of granularity.
15 On the issue of typicality, how deeply in the weeds must I get 16 on that, because I'm not being told to certify a class.
17 Instead I'm being told that federal, but not bankruptcy law, 18 and the issues attendant to that, attendant to precertification 19 dominate. So what am I to look at in regards to typicality and 20 why is it that typicality requires withdrawal?

21 MR. LIVSHIZ: Perhaps I'm missing the question, your 22 Honor. I don't think at this point you have to adjudicate
23 typicality or any other class certification questions. All you 24 need to do at this point is to decide whether adjudication of 25 LBSF's motion would require adjudication of non-bankruptcy

F54FLEH2

1 federal law.

2 THE COURT: That's what I understand. I want to know
3 how much do I need to consider in order to make that 4 determination?

5 MR. LIVSHIZ: I think the cases in this district make 6 clear you do not have to consider that question your Honor.
7 The question you need to consider at this time is only the 8 preliminary question that we just discussed.

9 THE COURT: There's discussion about B2 and B3
10 processes. Is that also you, sir?

11 MR. LIVSHIZ: Yes.

12 THE COURT: Okay. I'm sorry for Mr. Blocker. I 13 promise, I have a couple of questions for you, but maybe I'll 14 just let him talk.

15 When you talk about B3 classes what you've said is if 16 they're certified everyone is going to opt out. If that is the 17 case, then at some point what; we'll just have the same 18 proceeding we have right now, which is where everybody has been 19 joined as a defendant and they've all opted out but they all 20 remain as defendants in the adversary proceeding? There's 21 simply no class action? What happens if a B3 is certified? I 22 don't think there's a way that you can force folks to stay, to 23 refrain from opting out of the B3.

24 MR. LIVSHIZ: That's correct, your Honor. You don't 25 opt out of the litigation, you opt out of the class.

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: Exactly. Would that it were so easy, sir.
2 So assuming as you've hinted to me that everyone is going to 3 opt out if a class is certified, am I not right back in the 4 position that we are right now?

5                   MR. LIVSHIZ: First of all, they're seeking non --

6                   THE COURT: B2, I understand. They've got issues with 7 B2. I understand.

8                   MR. LIVSHIZ: To the extent everybody opted out, your 9 Honor, the class would proceed on the merits with individual 10 defendants having ability to assert their claims and their 11 defenses.

12                  THE COURT: And we would be right where you wanted to 13 be if the scheduling order had gone the way you wanted it to 14 go.

15                  MR. LIVSHIZ: To the extent that we were --

16                  THE COURT: The answer is yes. However, your point is 17 much time will have passed, theoretical interest or actual 18 interest will have accrued, decisions will not be made.

19                  MR. LIVSHIZ: To the extent, your Honor, to the extent 20 that it's theoretical interest, I think it's helpful to 21 understand it in actual context of the effect that the New York 22 statutory interest rate applies. That has the effect of 23 increasing their claim by a two billion dollars, if paid, and 24 that is a significant amount of money, and to the extent five 25 more years go by, it adds another billion dollars.

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: There's been no request that they don't 2 bill interest as this goes is going on, right? I'm thinking 3 not. Mr. Blocker, has it been?

4                   MR. BLOCKER: At this stage --

5                   THE COURT: Would it bother you that this case was 6 going on for years if it wasn't for the fact that interest was 7 accruing potentially?

8                   MR. BLOCKER: I don't know about that, but early on 9 when there was a request by Lehman for a stay. There were 10 objections filed and the objections were, fine, if they want to 11 have a stay, but stop the interest clock. That didn't get 12 any --

13                  THE COURT: No traction there?

14                  MR. BLOCKER: No traction, no ruling. They got a stay 15 every time. It has been raised but the interest has been 16 running.

17                  THE COURT: Mr. Blocker, I'm going to talk to you in a 18 moment but I have one more set of questions for Mr. Livshiz.
19 Sir, talk to me about B2. Why does it fail?

20                  MR. LIVSHIZ: First of all, your Honor, B2 is an 21 inappropriate class certification device to use for monetary 22 damages. Second of all, your Honor --

23                  THE COURT: Actually, no. Thank you. That's exactly 24 the point I want to talk to you about. Each of you has a 25 different view about the prioritization of the request for

1 declarative relief and request for monetary relief. I want to 2 hear your view on that. I'm sure they're going to have the 3 exact opposite but they will have the opportunity and I do want 4 to hear it.

5 MR. LIVSHIZ: Sure, your Honor. First of all, I think 6 to start at first principles I think the Wal-Mart decision from 7 the Supreme Court suggests that 20-3B2 is inappropriate for 8 monetary damages in any event. I think if you look at the D.C.
9 decision in Richardson v. Delta, cited in our opposition to 10 LBSF's class certification motion, it makes the point that 11 where the declaration relief is simply a foundation for the 12 ultimate award of damages the B2 certification is inappropriate
13 and you need to certify under B3.

14 In any event, your Honor, the question for today is 15 whether or not this is a substantial consideration, requires 16 substantial consideration of federal law. There I think, your 17 Honor, there's not much dispute that this is not a question 18 that has been addressed by the Second Circuit, particularly in 19 the defendant context.

20 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. Let my hear from Mr.
21 Blocker. So, this is not the first motion to withdraw in 22 connection with the Lehman bankruptcy.

23 MR. BLOCKER: That's right.

24 THE COURT: And generally speaking they tend to fail.

25 MR. BLOCKER: Okay.

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: Why is your case different?

2                   MR. BLOCKER: That's a great question, your Honor. I
3 think Lehman cited ten cases, so I'm going to concede
4 something, your Honor. If that is the set we're using, there 5 have been lots of these motions that were turned down. The 6 reason it's different --

7                   THE COURT: I'm sorry, this is a beautiful courtroom
8 but with poor acoustics. Please just speak up, thank you.

9                   MR. BLOCKER: So of the ten decisions, eight of them 10 it was decided doesn't have anything to do with this property, 11 so that takes care of this case. One of them is the Ka Kin 12 Wong case, which that was a case that there was a motion to 13 reference before BNY was decided, so that's not our case. The 14 only other one you have is Michigan State Housing, which is a 15 different issue.

16                  The reason that our case is so different from all of 17 those is a couple of things, your Honor. We've waited five 18 years for our opportunity to be able to test these issues so 19 we're not in the position of Ka Kin Wong back in 2009 or these 20 other entities that got decisions right away. If you look at 21 Michigan State Housing decision -- Lehman -- the district court 22 judge got Lehman to concede that the issue could be decided 23 quickly and on summary judgment. That's not what you have 24 here.

25                  What makes our case different is you've got a lot of

F54FLEH2

1 money at stake, a lot of parties at stake, you have years that 2 have passed since this decision, BNY and Valley Rock were 3 issued. None of us were parties to that decision, none of us 4 have had any ability to impact that in any way. So now the 5 question is five years later if we don't get that tested now or 6 at some early juncture we're going to spend another couple of 7 years doing discovery. Look at how many people are in the back 8 of the courtroom. That's how many people are going to be 9 participating in discovery. It will be years, millions of 10 dollars spent. That's what makes this case different. That's 11 what makes this case unique. If there was ever a candidate for 12 withdrawal it seems like this is it. We really got guidance 13 from the bankruptcy court on the bankruptcy law issues. You've 14 got gobs of money at stake and a long time has passed.

15 THE COURT: You said to me in your briefing this isn't 16 forum shopping.

17 MR. BLOCKER: It's not forum shopping, your Honor.

18 THE COURT: You've argued to me that one reason I 19 should accept this case and allow the withdrawal is because you 20 already know what Judge Chapman is going to say. So on some 21 level, come on, in a quiet moment, isn't it forum shopping?

22 MR. BLOCKER: I'm not going to concede that. I
23 understand your Honor's, point but it's not forum shopping.
24 Ultimately -- first of all the bankruptcy court there's no real 25 dispute here the bankruptcy court cannot enter a final judgment

F54FLEH2

1 on all of the claims, so this case is going to come up to the 2 district court and have to be resolved in any event at some 3 point. Why is it forum shopping for us to ask for that to 4 happen now as opposed to three years from now.

5 If you look at some of the opinions we cited, like in 6 Development Specialists, Judge McMahon specifically said it's 7 not forum shopping if you're going to the Court you're going to 8 end up at anyway. That's where we're at. It's not forum 9 shopping.

10 THE COURT: There is something weird about the fact 11 that, and I know we've talked about this earlier, the real 12 issues here are bankruptcy issues. I would like I think, any 13 district judge would like to have the wisdom of a bankruptcy
14 judge on these issues and I think you know because you've read 15 the same opinions I have, oral and written, that one thing that 16 is cited frequently by the district judge is denying motion to 17 reference is the expertise of the bankruptcy court and the long 18 time that the Lehman bankruptcy proceedings having going on in 19 the bankruptcy court.

20 So there is that. I have to say those arguments do 21 resonate with me. We've talked about how you think I should 22 know already or at least there's a substantial likelihood of 23 where Judge Chapman is going to go. I'd like you again to 24 respond to why it doesn't make sense for me to let a Court that 25 has had this case for years continue to resolve the case.

F54FLEH2

1                   MR. BLOCKER: Well, I go back to what I said before, 2 your Honor, and I believe this, which is in the normal 3 circumstance where the question is teeing something up for the 4 bankruptcy court, it's a bankruptcy law issue. I understand 5 your Honor's point you want to get the guidance from the 6 bankruptcy court and that's the usual grounds on which these 7 sort of permissible motions are denied; I want to hear from the 8 bankruptcy court I want to get the bankruptcy court's guidance.
9 Here's the issue. What do you do if you already have the 10 bankruptcy court's guidance? That's what we're teeing up here.
11 Judge Peck ruled, Judge Chapman has said for better or worse
12 this is the law of case. You have guidance from the bankruptcy
13 court. Whatever you're going to get from the bankruptcy court 14 you've got.

15                   We wouldn't necessarily agree that the main issues 16 here are bankruptcy law issues. You have guidance on that.
17 What you haven't got guidance on is all the various claims that 18 the bankruptcy court can't enter final judgment on; the state 19 court claim, there's a number of final conveyance claims which 20 the Court has made crystal clear bankruptcy court cannot enter 21 final judgment on. So you have the bankruptcy court's guidance 22 on whatever issues are really critical. Now you have a bunch 23 of issues that the bankruptcy court cannot enter final 24 judgment. Under those circumstances why should we wait? Why 25 should we go through another proceeding? It's almost like

F54FLEH2

1 going through grounds of BNY. Why should we do that? We have 2 the answer the bankruptcy court has given. Your Honor can take 3 that to another court and make their own decisions, but the 4 only question that is going to come up is, is it more efficient 5 to do it now or two or three years from now after we spent all 6 the money going through discovery or summary judgment or 7 whatever will come up.

8 THE COURT: Mr. Blocker, I have a few questions on 9 permissive withdrawal, but I don't think you want to think I 10 favor Mr. Livshiz. I want you to know there are things I have 11 in mind as I consider the permissive point. I'd like to hear 12 from you on that now.

13 MR. BLOCKER: Oh, this is free form?

14 THE COURT: Yes. I'd like you to extemporize or tell 15 me it's all in the briefs, because I have read them.

16 MR. BLOCKER: I do think it's all in the briefs, your 17 Honor. We made clear why we think the Orient factors here cut 18 in favor of a permissive withdrawal reference.

19 I want to go back to a question you asked Mr. Livshiz 20 that I want to be clear about, okay? You asked him essentially 21 what do want me to do here, should I withdraw. The answer is 22 you should withdraw the whole adversary case. You should take 23 the entire case. The quickest way to get to a final conclusion 24 in this case is for your Honor to is that the whole thing. We 25 think you can do that either on a mandatory basis or you can do

F54FLEH2

1 it on a permissive basis at a minimum. On a mandatory basis, 2 we would submit that's a decision for your Honor, but let's be 3 clear, we think you should take the whole adversary case.
4 Let's accelerate the process. Why wouldn't Lehman want to have 5 a decision sooner rather than later? If we're going to have a 6 decision in the bankruptcy court and have to repeat it or 7 repeat large portions of it in this court, that doesn't seem as 8 efficient to me, especially given the passage of time we have 9 here. Make no mistake here. We will have the entire adversary 10 proceeding withdrawn.

11                   Unless you have any questions for me I'll sit back 12 down.

13                   THE COURT: Just a few follow-ons to that. One of the 14 decisions that were submitted to me in connection with this 15 motion, Judge Sullivan's decision, I don't remember exactly the 16 case, he reminded the parties with tongue firmly planted in 17 cheek that the parties can always consent to have the 18 bankruptcy court decide the issues finally, basically the 19 post-Stern view of what a Court could consider could be 20 obviated. So you know you have that ability, right?

21                   MR. BLOCKER: I do. I only speak for my own clients, 22 considering who are behind me, but I don't think my client 23 would consent.

24                   THE COURT: Is there any way, and you'll excuse me for 25 trying to think out of the box, it usually fails, but is there

F54FLEH2

1 any way to stipulate or otherwise accelerate the process
2 through which the BNY decision could be decided short of the 3 process that's now been set forth in the scheduling order or 4 withdrawal of the reference? I understand those are the two 5 options that have been given to me. I want to know is there 6 anything else that can be done to get that decision up to 7 the -- I presume -- you say you want me but you really want the 8 Second Circuit to decide. They have more precedential value
9 than I do. Is there any way of getting it to them?

10 MR. BLOCKER: I asked the question, I canvassed 11 colleagues -- like you said, people behind me are shaking their 12 heads -- maybe I'm not thinking outside of the box, how exactly 13 to get that done. When you say that to me, my answer is we 14 could have done the scheduling order a different way in the 15 bankruptcy court, maybe taken an interlocutory appeal, but 16 that's not available to us. That's not a lock that we would 17 get an interlocutory appeal that I know of.

18 In any event, there's no immediate mechanism that I'm 19 aware of to get this up to the Second Circuit.

20 THE COURT: In my prior life in criminal law we had 21 trials on stipulated facts but I do appreciate that if you lose 22 on a trial on stipulated facts you and your clients are looking 23 at quite a large number, and I just don't think, I can't 24 imagine you wouldn't want to test that. So I understand it.
25 I've been racking my brain trying to find another solution.

F54FLEH2

1 MR. BLOCKER: I mean, and so in Michigan State Housing 2 there was a request to withdraw a reference, which was 3 denied -- so why am I bringing up the case? The judge did look 4 in precisely the way you are for a way to get things done
5 quickly. I think it was Judge Koeltl, but I could be wrong.

6 THE COURT: I believe it was he as well.

7 MR. BLOCKER: What he did, he extracted I'll say
8 concessions from Lehman that, A, it could be decided on summary
9 judgment; B, they wouldn't argue there were factual issues, C, 10 it would be done quickly. In those circumstances the Court 11 said, okay, you can file a motion for summary judgment in the 12 bankruptcy court, I'll get to review that pretty quickly.

13 THE COURT: I thought Judge Koeltl's point, which I 14 thought was clever, which was you could bypass him and go 15 directly to the Second Circuit. His point was if we want the 16 this done quickly I'm a speed bump on the way to ultimate 17 resolution of the case so just go directly to the Second 18 Circuit and I believe the parties conceded that that could be 19 done.

20 I guess the issue that I think you're saying is it's a 21 little late for that given the scheduling order's occurred on 22 this stance.

23 MR. BLOCKER: The way it occurred in the bankruptcy
24 court, it is what it is, your Honor. Contrasting Michigan
25 State Housing, because the district court judge was sensitive

F54FLEH2

1 to the notion that there was a reason to try to speed things
2 up. If nothing else about our motion you should understand 3 we're trying to speed things up. We want a review of BNY, we 4 want to move these up because we do think we're on solid legal 5 ground, we want to get it adjudicated. I don't have an 6 out-of-the-box solution standing here quickly on my feet, 7 another solution.

8 THE COURT: You've had several years, with no slight 9 intended, sir. There are a lot of people in this room and no 10 one has come up with anything else. There may not be an 11 alternative.

12 MR. BLOCKER: That makes me feel better. In any 13 event, that's my pitch, your Honor, unless you have any further 14 questions.

15 THE COURT: Not at this time.

16 Okay may I ask who from the front table? All right, 17 Mr. DeFilippo. I have questions for you but if you want to 18 begin by commenting on the many questions I've asked your 19 adversaries, I'd be happy to hear from you now.

20 MR. DeFILIPPO: Yes, your Honor. I would like to do
21 that. Thank you. First of all, on the U.K. law issues you 22 addressed, there are only two deals in this case that are 23 governed by U.K. laws, so it's not a huge factor for your Honor 24 to concern yourself with.

25 Secondly, during the three and a half years the case

F54FLEH2

1 was stayed we did discovery to ascertain the identity of the 2 note holder defendants which we did not know when we filed the 3 case. That's why we had as many as several hundred. We now 4 have about 140 left because we were able to figure out who they 5 were and join them and we've managed to join them all within 6 the 6-year statute of limitations which applies to most of our 7 claims, which is going to be an important thing when we get to 8 the whole American Pipe Tolling issue. I'm sure you have 9 questions for me about that, but I'd like you to keep that in 10 mind.

11 We think that the defendants could have taken an 12 interlocutory appeal or at least applied to take one from the 13 scheduling order and determined for whatever reason not to do 14 so.

15 THE COURT: Is it too late now, sir?

16 MR. DeFILIPPO: I'm not prepared to give that advice,
17 your Honor.

18 THE COURT: Give me advice, sir.

19 MR. DeFILIPPO: I don't know. Probably yes, I believe 20 it is.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MR. DeFILIPPO: Just like they think the safe harbor 23 560 protects them, we think Judge Peck got it right. His 24 decision is short, but if you look at what the words that 560 25 said, it only protects liquidation, determination or

F54FLEH2

1 acceleration of a stock. This case is about the distribution
2 of the assets of the 45 CDO's or issuers that basically turned 3 over the property they held for the benefit in the first 4 instance of LBSF to the note holders solely as a result of the 5 LBHI bankruptcy filing, which makes it a clear ipso facto 6 violation if you look at 365(e)(1), a contractual provision 7 that modifies or terminates a debtor's rights solely because of 8 the commencement of a Title XI case is unenforceable and that's 9 what this case is about.

10 THE COURT: I'll stop you for a moment, sir, because 11 what they tell me is no, no, no, it did not flip priorities as 12 much as it established considerations under which each priority 13 was a priority. You disagree with that.

14 MR. DeFILIPPO: Your Honor, the only reason the flip 15 law was implemented was because of the LBHI bankruptcy. We 16 have notices of determination for every single trustee as well 17 as every single issuer and the reason given in every case is 18 because of the Lehman bankruptcy.

19 THE COURT: Could you give me a little more color on 20 your arguments on the applicability or not on the safe harbor?
21 What you said is Judge Peck relied on the fact that by its 22 terms the provisions applied to provisions that dealt with the 23 liquidation, determination or acceleration.

24 MR. DeFILIPPO: Right.

25 THE COURT: Why isn't that what the flip clause is?

F54FLEH2

1                   MR. DeFILIPPO: The flip clause is a modification. We 2 originally had priority. Each of the debt investors had an 3 order fall and in each of the order falls Lehman had priority 4 over the note holders.

5                   THE COURT: Because the transactions were then in the 6 money?

7                   MR. DeFILIPPO: Yes and if the transactions are in the 8 money we get paid first on termination unless termination is a 9 result of a default by Lehman. The default by Lehman is the 10 commencement of a bankruptcy case. 365(e)(1) of the Bankruptcy
11 Code says that cannot be the basis for modification of rights.
12 The modification of rights was the flip of priority. That's 13 Judge Peck's decision in a nutshell and because 560 only 14 applies to liquidation, termination or acceleration, we are 15 free to sue to recover for wrongful distribution of collateral.

16                   THE COURT: Can you explain to me where 560 would 17 apply? Could you give me an example of where the issue in 18 question is in fact liquidation, determination or acceleration?

19                   MR. DeFILIPPO: We're not contesting their right to 20 terminate the swap which they did; termination. We're not 21 contesting their right to accelerate the notes, which they did;
22 acceleration. We're not contesting their rights to liquidate
23 the collateral, which they did; liquidation. We are contesting 24 their rights to take that collateral and distribute. That is 25 not covered by the literal terms of 560. That's Judge Peck's

F54FLEH2

1 decision. We think it's right, however, while they think it's 2 wrong. They are not prepared to concede that it applies to 3 them. So it's a little bit of doublespeak here, with all due 4 respect to my colleagues here on the defense side, your Honor.

5 THE COURT: How so?

6 MR. DeFILIPPO: They want you to take that decision
7 over which the bankruptcy court has final adjudicative
8 authority, no question about that. Many of the claims in this 9 case are well within the bankruptcy court's ability to decide.
10 As your Honor knows from sitting as an appellate court from the 11 bankruptcy courts, bankruptcy courts maintain the power to make 12 decisions and final decisions on issues of bankruptcy law like 13 whether 365 applies and whether this is an ipso facto clause; 14 whether 560 applies or whether they were protected by it.
15 Whether they violated the automatic stay by distributing post 16 petition, whether the money distributed was property of the 17 estate. Bankruptcy court has plenary power to make those 18 determinations and all the cases tell us that your Honor should 19 let the bankruptcy court do its job. Let the bankruptcy court 20 decide the issues that it can decide and let it render findings 21 and conclusions on the issues it can't.

22 In an excellent decision by Judge Rakoff, Kirschner v.
23 Agoglia, he actually said that and we think it's appropriate 24 for your Honor's consideration in this case.

25 I had additional --

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: That's fine, although I do -- I'm on a 2 tangent right. Now I want to finish it, please. Can you
3 explain to me how Judge Peck's Michigan State Housing
4 Development Authority fits into all this? You heard Mr.
5 Blocker and I wrestle with the word harmonizable. I imagine 6 you can harmonize them, sir. Tell me how they are.

7                   MR. DeFILIPPO: Calculation is part of liquidation.
8 You can't liquidate unless you can calculate the amount of the 9 value of the collateral.

10                  THE COURT: All right. Now go ahead and tell me what 11 else is on your list.

12                  MR. DeFILIPPO: One of the last questions you asked I 13 think to Mr. Blocker I think you got an answer to, and that is 14 we could consent to the immediate review by the Second Circuit 15 from any decision by Judge Chapman on the issues that they've 16 asked you to withdraw.

17                  THE COURT: But you understand, sir, that it would be 18 a pity to get that done after a year, two years or whatnot, of 19 class certification litigation. I think that's their argument.

20                  MR. DeFILIPPO: But, your Honor, class certification
21 is ready to argue. The briefing is done. We're just waiting 22 for a date. Somebody tried to file a sur reply.

23                  THE COURT: Yes, I heard the word sur reply.

24                  MR. DeFILIPPO: It shouldn't hold things up at all.
25 It's going to be decided whether or not --

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: But won't that, sir, then be the subject 2 of some bankruptcy appeal, will they not be able to appeal the 3 decision to certify the class?

4                   MR. DeFILIPPO: Interlocutorally?

5                   THE COURT: Yes.

6                   MR. DeFILIPPO: It depends on what the decision is, 7 your Honor. But the point I think you're trying to make is, is 8 there a likelihood of further delay.

9                   THE COURT: That is my point, yes.

10                  MR. DeFILIPPO: The point I think you should take from 11 this is, this is a case about documents. This is not a case 12 where the credibility of witnesses is going to be at issue.
13 This is not a case where there are going to be 50 or 60 note 14 holders coming up to testify as to what happened. The 15 documents tell the story in this case. There are indentures, 16 there are waterfalls, termination notices, distribution 17 reports. This is principally the evidence in this case. It's 18 not going to be a tremendous amount of discovery. We had one 19 witness for class certification. One. Class certification is 20 not going to be an extraordinarily fact sensitive analysis 21 either, we don't think. We think there are tremendous 22 similarities among all the documents, and, you know, the issues 23 that we have to show commonality about we think we have, and 24 that is are these flip clauses ipso facto clauses. That's 25 really the key to class certification.

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: Go ahead. Now tell me if there are other 2 things.

3                   MR. DeFILIPPO: I think, your Honor, those are the 4 points I wanted to respond to that you asked our adversaries.

5                   THE COURT: Let me ask this, sir. Again, I may be 6 speaking in my own ignorance but I'll ask the question
7 nonetheless. This adversary proceeding was not filed until BNY
8 was decided. Why hadn't LBSF thought to bring an action
9 against the note holders before that decision was issued? You 10 didn't know where Judge Peck was going to come out, but I'm 11 surprised that you -- I'll say it this way. If I didn't know 12 more, I would say that you didn't think you had the argument 13 until he gave you the argument, so I'm sure that can't be the 14 case. Why don't you tell me what happened?

15                  MR. DeFILIPPO: I think, your Honor, BNY was decided 16 in 2009 and this case was filed in September of 2010.

17                  THE COURT: Yes. But the bankruptcy had been going on 18 for several years beforehand, correct?

19                  MR. DeFILIPPO: Since September of 2008. It was a 20 very complex bankruptcy with tremendously knotty issues and I 21 think that even though my firm was not integrally involved in 22 the formulation of the Chapter 11 plan, I think the debtor's 23 principal focus at that point in time was trying to get out of 24 bankruptcy, was trying to get a plan confirmed, was trying to 25 negotiate with an enormous number of creditors with disparate

F54FLEH2

1 interests and to try to bring them all together was probably 2 the main focus of the debtors' efforts until that was 3 accomplished. As you know, there was I think 600 billion in 4 assets in the case and hundreds of thousands of creditors and 5 there were a lot of fires going on. I'm speculating at this 6 point but --

7 THE COURT: You don't know.

8 MR. DeFILIPPO: I really don't know.

9 THE COURT: Then I will not ask you for what you do 10 not know.

11 Something, sir, that sort of resonates with me is that 12 you have identified the vast majority of the folks who would be 13 the members of the class. There are a number of them in this 14 adversary proceeding. I appreciate what you're saying in that 15 there are folks who have not been able to be identified because 16 they're perhaps in other countries or there are efforts made to 17 protect their identities that have remained successful but I 18 really would like to understand what you hope to achieve from 19 the class action process and all the attendant knotty issues
20 that inhere in Rule 23 and the certification rule that you 21 couldn't just do by keeping the adversary proceeding in its 22 current form.

23 MR. DeFILIPPO: Your Honor, as you've heard, and as 24 you've read, a lot of these defendants, and I want to mention 25 that this group in the courtroom is I think less than half of

1 the total note holder defense group. There's 140 of them,
2 so --

3 THE COURT: There's more.

4 MR. DeFILIPPO: Right. I think at most 80 have 5 participated in the case. There are 60 who have been dormant.
6 So our objective by seeking class certification is simple. We 7 want to determine liability or not against the largest number 8 of note holder defendants possible. And we do not seek to 9 certify a non-opt out damages class. That is a 10 misrepresentation of our position. We seek a hybrid class 11 non-opt out for liability, opt out for damages. That's clear 12 from our papers. If not, please allow me to make it clear at 13 this point.

14 THE COURT: I understood that, but is it a B1 B3 or B2
15 B3?

16 MR. DeFILIPPO: Either one, your Honor would be fine.
17 We're not at that.

18 THE COURT: I'm not sure I've seen a B1 B3. We'll 19 talk about that later. Even in connection with the 20 certification motion the number of briefs filed by your 21 adversary is quite small. I guess it's surprising to me that 22 the parties couldn't decide or Judge Chapman couldn't decide to 23 save the drama by limiting the number of briefs that one side 24 could file.

25 MR. DeFILIPPO: Your Honor, when we originally moved

F54FLEH2

1 for a scheduling order we tried to do it that way. We asked 2 that the Court appoint a liaison counsel for the defendants and 3 an executive committee and the defendants opposed that. They 4 were not willing to be governed by the Court. They wanted to 5 self govern and as a result we have a fragmented group. More 6 than half are not here. Half are here arguing sometimes for 7 the rights of those not here.

8 THE COURT: They're not arguing for the 60 who aren't 9 here or the approximately 60 who aren't here?

10 MR. DeFILIPPO: They are arguing for themselves but 11 their argument in American Pipe Tolling are for the people who 12 are not here.

13 THE COURT: There have been suggestions by your 14 adversary that are there are due process ramifications to your 15 inability to identify all the members of the class. What 16 percentage of this class, the putative class, has been 17 identified? 99 percent?

18 MR. DeFILIPPO: No, your Honor. I think we've 19 identified, well, we've dismissed out as a result of the 20 mediation process that went on during the three-and-a-half-year 21 period, we settled about a billion dollars worth of claims in 22 this case and we've dismissed out the commensurate number of 23 note holders, so excluding the dismissed out note holders we 24 think there are about 40 who have not been joined but who are 25 known, and an unknown number who have not been joined and who

1 are not known. But the unknown number only represents, to the 2 best of my knowledge, about $40 million worth of distributions.

3 THE COURT: That's the unknown.

4 MR. DeFILIPPO: That's the unknown and unjoined as 5 opposed to the known and unjoined.

6 THE COURT: May I ask why the known but not joined 7 have not been joined?

8 MR. DeFILIPPO: They were identified very late in the 9 process, your Honor, in connection with some of the litigation 10 over the motions to dismiss by uniquely situated defendants.
11 So we just haven't gotten around to it yet.

12 THE COURT: Your belief is that there is no
13 limitations issue because of American Pipe?

14 MR. DeFILIPPO: I didn't necessarily say that, your 15 Honor. We just haven't filed the motion to amend yet as to 16 them. We've been pretty busy on other things.

17 THE COURT: I would not doubt that, sir. The issue, 18 what was suggested to me, was that there were three amendments 19 to the original complaint and each time where folks are being 20 added. So as to these 40, they haven't had any appearance 21 before Judge Chapman, they may be subject to what's going on in 22 this litigation over the certification of the class and they're 23 kind of out of luck in terms of their ability to participate.
24 Or maybe not.

25 MR. DeFILIPPO: Your Honor, I don't want to predict

F54FLEH2

1 whether we'll make a motion to amend to add them or not at this 2 point, but they do, we're pretty sure they know about the case, 3 because the way we found out about that is through discovery of 4 nominees for them who presumably have been giving them 5 information about the case since the nominees have been joined, 6 and the nominees hold notes on behalf of these unnamed parties.
7 So it's not like this case will be a surprise to them when it 8 finally appears on their radar, which may make relation back a 9 relevant consideration.

10 THE COURT: On the issue of the unknown and unjoined, 11 is your view at this point that they're just never going to be 12 known and never going to be joined?

13 MR. DeFILIPPO: We think, your Honor, that the answer 14 to that is it's very difficult to cut through the privacy laws 15 of the jurisdictions in which those parties, those potential 16 parties reside absent a judgment of a U.S. Court. Once a 17 judgment is entered we think we might have a little better luck 18 getting access to their identities.

19 THE COURT: Okay. There's a statement in your brief
20 that I'd like a little bit of clarification on. And what you 21 say is, joinder is not practicable because the size of the note 22 holder class is so big that the ability of an individual note 23 holder to participate would be minimal. It gives me a little 24 concern that you say an individual note holder has a minimal 25 right to participate. Explain that to me, please.

F54FLEH2

1                   MR. DeFILIPPO: Your Honor focused on that a little 2 bit in questioning our adversaries. That is, are there going
3 to be 140 motions to dismiss? How in the absence of class 4 certification, how will whatever ruling comes out on the 5 bankruptcy law questions, the BNY and the other things, 6 automatic stay and property at stake, how will they be made 7 applicable or binding on the maximum number of defendants if we 8 have 80 people standing on the sidelines? So it's hard to 9 envision how we go about doing that unless we bring a summary
10 judgment motion on those points against all of the note holder
11 defendants and then wait for the arguments that the factual
12 issues are too material to permit that to happen. The dormant 13 defendants we don't anticipate will file motions to dismiss so 14 at most we'll have 60 motions to dismiss and 80 people hanging 15 out there.

16                   THE COURT: Sure, but once again, does Judge Chapman 17 have no way to, as a matter of her ability to control her 18 docket, has no way to limit the number of briefs that are filed 19 or the number of motions that are filed?

20                   MR. DeFILIPPO: We think she does, your Honor, but 21 last time we tried that we were not successful in achieving it.

22                   THE COURT: You were not successful in getting the 23 defendants to agree to it is what I think I heard you say.

24                   MR. DeFILIPPO: We asked that it be imposed.

25                   THE COURT: I see. And she declined.

F54FLEH2

1                   MR. DeFILIPPO: She was persuaded that the defendants 2 could self govern at this point, although she did reserve the 3 right to change her mind later.

4                   THE COURT: Okay. On the actual merits issues in this 5 case, the BNY issues, there's a little bit of to'ing and 6 fro'ing as to the degree to which Judge Chapman is or will act 7 as though she is bound by those decisions. I have read the 8 transcript provisions where she believes they are very likely 9 to be law of the case but you keep calling to my attention her 10 statement that of course she will decide these cases in 11 accordance with their facts. So what is it, is the point that 12 you believe she will come out the same way but she will not 13 reflexively adopt Judge Peck's reasoning, she will simply come 14 to see the correctness of that reasoning?

15                  MR. DeFILIPPO: Your Honor, we think Judge Peck's 16 decisions are correct and we are hopeful that Judge Chapman
17 will share our views on that. We also think that a factual 18 record has to be made before those issues can actually be cited 19 and we have not made that factual record before her. We need 20 to put into evidence all of these flip clauses. We need to put 21 into evidence all of the other documents that we say are 22 dispositive of the issue. She needs to decide whether in fact 23 as we argued there are insignificant differences between the 24 documents and they are all sufficiently similar to constitute 25 ipso facto clauses. There may be intervening legal decisions

F54FLEH2

1 that none of us contemplate before she does that, which might 2 change her view.

3 THE COURT: What might those be? Where might those 4 come from?

5 MR. DeFILIPPO: I don't know what other Courts around 6 the country might be prepared to consider this issue, your 7 Honor.

8 THE COURT: Are you aware?

9 MR. DeFILIPPO: I am not aware, but I can't --

10 THE COURT: I'm not suggesting that you would know 11 what's going on in every bankruptcy court. I'm saying that 12 perhaps bankruptcy law reporters or people might be talking 13 about these issues percolating in other courts. Are you aware 14 of these issues percolating in other courts?

15 MR. DeFILIPPO: Not specifically, your Honor. We 16 think Judge Chapman needs to make a record before she rules
17 and -- I may have lost the thread of your question, your Honor.
18 Would you help me get back to it?

19 THE COURT: Of course. The issue is your adversaries
20 have expressed concern to me and have expressed their belief 21 that the statements of Judge Chapman have indicated her 22 inclination to abide by the BNY and Valley Rock decisions and 23 with that in mind, why shouldn't I just basically take the 24 opportunity now to allow for the withdrawal of the reference 25 because this is not a situation, as is frequently the case,

F54FLEH2

1 where the district court needs to wait in order to benefit from 2 the bankruptcy court's reasoning.

3 MR. DeFILIPPO: Well, several answers to that, your 4 Honor. First of all, this is in the context of permissive and 5 not mandatory withdrawal, because none of those matters involve 6 the substantial interpretation of bankruptcy federal law, 7 regulating organization or activities affecting interstate 8 commerce. So the issue then is does the fact that there are 9 decisions from the bankruptcy court and the record which 10 haven't been ruled on, the issues in those decisions haven't 11 been ruled on in this case yet, does that mean you should take 12 away the bankruptcy court's power to adjudicate issues over 13 which she has final adjudicative authority. And I think the 14 law says you shouldn't. I think the Arkinson case from the 15 Supreme Court says even in non-court cases the better practice 16 is to allow the bankruptcy judge to render findings and 17 conclusions to the district court subject to de novo review.
18 It's even more important that the bankruptcy court be allowed 19 to decide issues of bankruptcy law which are core and which are 20 not foreclosed by decision by Stern when those issues are 21 presented to the bankruptcy court in the first instance. You 22 do not have a decision of Judge Chapman on these issues. You 23 have some decisions of Judge Peck, two of which go our way, one 24 of which doesn't. I would suggest, your Honor, that it may be 25 appropriate to get a decision of Judge Chapman which might

F54FLEH2

1 inform your Honor's thinking on the issue even further than it 2 has been.

3 THE COURT: Okay. I guess my concern is if that's all 4 there were, I would understand exactly what you're saying and I
5 wouldn't push back as much, but there is this antecedent 6 question of class certification. It's not to suggest that 7 Judge Chapman doesn't know how to do it. Of course bankruptcy
8 courts know how to do it. There are some interesting issues 9 here including the issue raised by what you're in fact 10 suggesting that what you're seeking is a hybrid class 11 certification. Given that, can that piece of the case be 12 broken off? Can I withdraw just a part of the reference when 13 it comes to class certification and give it back to her for the 14 merits issue?

15 MR. DeFILIPPO: That's an interesting issue of 16 statutory interpretation under 157(d), your Honor. As you 17 know, the first sentence says you can withdraw in whole or in 18 part the proceeding and second sentence you can withdraw the 19 proceeding. I don't want to dig myself a hole here.

20 THE COURT: I'm not saying I'm volunteering to do
21 this. I'm just saying I want to be clear I understand what I 22 can do.

23 MR. DeFILIPPO: I think you have the power sua sponte 24 to do whatever you want here really and I'm here to persuade 25 you that you shouldn't do anything.

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: Okay, but let's talk about defending class 2 actions because that's what this is and the parties can differ 3 as to the degree to which they believe that the fact that it's 4 a defendant class action causes or should cause me to think 5 more of or less of certain decisions and particular topic
6 matters. I will say, and I'm sure you've seen this as well, 7 the law on defendant class actions I'm not suggesting is 8 perfectly consistent. There are a few things that come out, 9 though. There are real concerns about due process, especially 10 those that inhere in the certification process. There's a 11 question about the adequacy of representation, there are 12 questions about notice, opportunity to be heard, personal 13 jurisdiction and I suppose superiority as well. Those to me 14 are federal non-bankruptcy issues. And so while I certainly, 15 again, I have every trust in Judge Chapman's ability to do 16 this, I just wonder if there are, if there's such at least in 17 the first stage of this litigation such a focus on 18 non-bankruptcy issues that withdrawal of the reference is 19 appropriate.

20                   MR. DeFILIPPO: I think, your Honor, there are two 21 answers to that. The easy one is that we think Judge Chapman 22 is well equipped to decide those questions since they are not 23 that difficult with perhaps the exception of the B2 class. But 24 the statute is pretty -- the rule is pretty clear on what has 25 to be done and we think Judge Chapman can read the rule. Other

F54FLEH2

1 bankruptcy courts have certified defendant classes and we've 2 cited you those cases including Integra out of the Tenth 3 Circuit.

4 THE COURT: Weren't those classes classes where there 5 was a limited pool of assets and there was a concern that if 6 you did not have the class certified that money might run out?

7 MR. DeFILIPPO: No, I don't think so at all, your 8 Honor. Some of them were cases just like this one where the 9 trustee was trying to recover from a group of recipients of 10 transfers that were avoidable.

11 THE COURT: Okay.

12 MR. DeFILIPPO: So I think, first of all, we don't 13 think that the Rule 23 issues you've just identified rise to 14 the level of substantial and material. We think they're 15 routine and that the bankruptcy court has the ability and 16 should be allowed to decide that.

17 THE COURT: So in your estimation this would just be 18 an instance of Judge Chapman applying the law as opposed to 19 interpreting it in the first instance?

20 MR. DeFILIPPO: Absolutely correct, your Honor.

21 THE COURT: And you saw extensive discussion between 22 Mr. Livshiz and myself about the degree to which there are new 23 novel precedential issues or at least novel issues. You 24 disagree with his assessment of them?

25 MR. DeFILIPPO: Yes. I didn't hear too many of them

F54FLEH2

1 except for maybe the B2 hybrid class issue.

2 THE COURT: Well, American Pipe in the B2 setting.

3 I'm sorry, in the defendant class setting.

4 MR. DeFILIPPO: All due respect, your Honor, American 5 Pipe does not arise in class certification. That's not an 6 issue that comes up until motions to dismiss in a future phase.

7 THE COURT: Could they not argue that there's a 8 dissimilarity among class members because some of them will 9 have this defense and some will not?

10 MR. DeFILIPPO: They've already argued that, that some 11 have individualized statute of limitations. I could probably 12 take a sideline here and explain why we think that American 13 Pipe is not the momentous issue they make it out to be.

14 THE COURT: Yes. Please tell me.

15 MR. DeFILIPPO: Every one of the people in this room
16 and every other note holder defendant was sued within six years 17 of the Lehman petition date. If you look at the counts in the 18 complaint only four of them have a two-year statute of 19 limitations. Every other one of them either has no statute of 20 limitations like a claim for turnover or has a six-year statute 21 of limitations. The two-year statute of limitations arise with 22 respect to the avoidance action claims, the preference, the two 23 fraudulent transfer claims and the 549 unauthorized post 24 petition transfer claim. And 549 is two years, not from the 25 petition date, from the date of the transfer. So this is a

F54FLEH2

1 limited subset of claims, first. Secondly, we sued every 2 single one of the trustees within two years of the petition 3 date and the trustees were the first recipients of the 4 transfers. Not the note holders. The money went from the 5 issuers to the trustees to the note holders. We sued the 6 trustees within the applicable statute of limitations for 7 avoiding the transfers to them. So it's not an issue with 8 respect to statute of limitations for the avoidance actions 9 because 550(f) of the Bankruptcy Code gives you the right after 10 you avoid a transfer to sue the recipient of a subsequent 11 transfer for one year. So American Pipe Tolling is really 12 applicable to the unnamed note holders. The rights of the 13 unnamed note holders are not the job of this group to defend.
14 Although I understand your Honor can consider them. But this 15 is not that big a deal.

16 THE COURT: Mr. DeFilippo, I have some more questions 17 for you, but I do have this unfortunate habit of forgetting how 18 long I've been going. I've been going for two hours. I want 19 to take a ten-minute break, recognizing we do want to finish 20 promptly, let's take ten minutes and we'll come back.

21 (Recess)

22 THE COURT: Mr. DeFilippo, one of the things that I 23 found odd and still find odd about the movant's position is 24 that they've told me that there are all these very significant 25 non-bankruptcy issues that I should, which form the reason why

F54FLEH2

1 I should withdraw the reference, but then I just don't have to 2 decide them and I can decide them at the bankruptcy issues. I
3 guess yours is the converse of that, because what you're saying 4 is I can avoid certain knotty legal issues such as the Rules of 5 Decision Act or extra territoriality by focusing on the 6 Bankruptcy Code provisions that you say do apply
7 extraterritorially such as Sections 362, 541 and 542.

8 I guess my first question is, this seems to be sort of 9 a convergence, right, because there are issues of bankruptcy 10 law and there are issues of extra territoriality, so your 11 argument, sir, is that Judge Chapman is better suited to handle 12 those? I mean, because how much does extra territoriality or 13 the extra territorial application of Bankruptcy Code provisions 14 come into play in bankruptcy courts?

15 MR. DeFILIPPO: Well, your Honor, there are some 16 Bankruptcy Code provisions that do apply extra territorially
17 and some that don't. We acknowledge that the avoidance claims 18 have been held not to apply extra territorially and sometimes 19 they do, but the point of that is that there are many other 20 potential remedies available to us that do apply extra 21 territorially. For example, the automatic stay applies all 22 over the world and a violation of the stay is void ab initio, 23 which means the Court can enter an order declaring it's as if 24 the act never occurred that violates the stay which would allow 25 her to also order the parties that violated the stay to return

F54FLEH2

1 the property they got in violation of the stay without ever 2 having to reach the issues of 547, 548 or 549.

3 THE COURT: Now, I think you said to me that only two 4 of the swaps transactions involved U.K. contracts, is that 5 correct?

6 MR. DeFILIPPO: That's correct, your Honor.

7 THE COURT: So is it your view that in terms of your 8 ipso facto issues or your safe harbor issues none of those 9 implicate extra territorial issues because the contracts are 10 domestic?

11 MR. DeFILIPPO: On the ipso facto, our argument is 12 that extra territoriality is not implicated or stated
13 differently that 365 and the other sections of the Bankruptcy
14 Code that deal with ipso facto clauses apply to extra 15 territorial conduct because the plain language says that they 16 apply to any contract of the debtor. It doesn't matter where 17 the counter party is located. If the debtor has a contract 18 with a person in the U.K., 365 applies to it. So it's not like 19 you have to --

20 THE COURT: Is it that simple, sir, and I ask this 21 because again, in a criminal case I had, Volar, talked about 22 extra territorial application after Morrison, thinking about 23 Bowman and presumptions like that, you're saying the inclusion 24 of that word "any" should be taken to reverse what is sometimes 25 a presumption against extra territorial application?

F54FLEH2

1                   MR. DeFILIPPO: I may have gone a little far with that 2 one, your Honor, to be honest with you. 451 says wherever 3 located and by whomever held, that is clearly a worldwide
4 application. An automatic stay is clearly a worldwide
5 application. Our argument is that 365 has worldwide
6 application because otherwise how can the bankruptcy court do 7 its fundamental job of administering the property of the estate
8 if it could not deal with contracts where the debtor before it 9 was a party and the counter party was in a foreign country?
10 You can't do it any other way. You have to be able to handle 11 the contracts of the debtor if you're the bankruptcy court.

12                  THE COURT: Sure, but we're talking about 560 and the 13 safe harbor provision, that's -- I don't have to be concerned 14 about the fact that some of the contracts may be abroad?

15                  MR. DeFILIPPO: No, I don't think that's a question at 16 all. Your Honor, before you ask me another question you had 17 asked a couple of questions before the break that I didn't have 18 full answers to.

19                  THE COURT: All right. Well, I'll take all answers.

20                  MR. DeFILIPPO: I now have them. The first one you 21 asked is why do those issues like due process, adequacy notice, 22 personal jurisdiction and superiority, why should the 23 bankruptcy judge be allowed to handle them. And I think that I 24 only partially answered that.

25                  (Continued next page)

F54FLEH2

1                   MR. DeFILIPPO: The other reason is that they are not 2 laws regulating organizations or activities affecting 3 interstate commerce.

4                   THE COURT: Yes. Look, your adversary tells me that 5 your fixation on interstate commerce is unwarranted. I imagine 6 you disagree with them. There are other instances in which 7 courts have considered matters that are not specifically such 8 on interstate commerce.

9                   MR. DeFILIPPO: They are talking about the Judge 10 Rakoff decisions in the Madoff case.

11                  THE COURT: I believe they are.

12                  MR. DeFILIPPO: With all due respect --

13                  THE COURT: To whom?

14                  MR. DeFILIPPO: To Judge Rakoff.

15                  THE COURT: Okay.

16                  MR. DeFILIPPO: I respect for you is unquestionable, 17 your Honor.

18                  THE COURT: Very good. You realize Judge Koeltl
19 basically castigates people who say "with all due respect" 20 because he wonders who it is due.

21                  MR. DeFILIPPO: Those decisions contain no analysis or 22 reasoning about the interstate commerce language. None 23 whatsoever. In order to follow those decisions, you have to 24 stop reading 157(d) before the interstate commerce clause of 25 that statute. That would violate the principle of statutory

F54FLEH2

1 construction that you must give effect to all the words in the 2 statute when you are interpreting it. That is a basic 3 principle of statutory construction. You cannot ignore the 4 interstate commerce language. There are two important pieces
5 of legislative history of that statute and it all dovetails
6 with this whole theory that substantial and material 7 consideration is required of non-bankruptcy federal law. If 8 you look at these two pieces of legislative history, one is the 9 House congressional record in March 21st, 1984, and the other 10 one is the Senate report 98-55, both of which are considering 11 the bankruptcy court and federal judgeship acts, which became 12 157(d) that both of them say that the interstate commerce
13 language in there has to be narrowly construed and together 14 with the requirement that the statute itself has to be narrowly 15 construed means we have a double narrow construction required 16 of mandatory withdrawal.

17 In addition, your Honor, if you look at Title 28
18 you'll find at least five sections of that statute. I have a 19 list of them if you care about it.

20 THE COURT: I do.

21 MR. DeFILIPPO: But five sections, which use the words 22 "Constitution" or "laws of the United States." There is 23 another principle of statute construction that says that when 24 Congress leaves a word out and they use it in another section 25 of the same statute, it is presumed they did so intentionally.

1 Here they left "Constitution" out of 157(d) and it is presumed 2 they did so knowingly and intentionally.

3 THE COURT: Tell me what those sections are.

4 MR. DeFILIPPO: I am, your Honor. I have them and 5 perhaps I can get it for you --

6 THE COURT: Later. Fine.

7 MR. DeFILIPPO: So the second question I was going to 8 respond to was your question whether there are other cases
9 around the country dealing with the ipso facto issues. I am 10 informed that both the Valley Rock and the Michigan cases are 11 still pending. They have not been concluded. They can result 12 in intervening decisions that affect Judge Chapman's decision 13 in this case.

14 THE COURT: Where are they procedurally?

15 MR. DeFILIPPO: Mr. Dahill knows.

16 MR. DAHILL: Your Honor in the Valley Rock case, the 17 second amended complaint was recently filed in September of 18 this year. So that case has just moved beyond that stage.

19 THE COURT: I am sorry. This is the same Valley Rock 20 case of how many years ago?

22 THE COURT: Wow.

23 MR. DAHILL: It is still pending. The Michigan 24 Development Authority case is still pending as well. My 25 understanding there is not much activity in that case.

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: Do you have a sense, sir, of why there is 2 not much activity in this case?

3                   MR. DAHILL: I don't, your Honor. I tried to endeavor 4 to get some information during the break.

5                   THE COURT: Thank you. Please continue.

6                   MR. DeFILIPPO: That was the full extent of what I 7 needed to respond to that I hadn't responded to earlier, your 8 Honor. So I am ready for your next question.

9                   THE COURT: I would like to talk to you a bit more 10 about extraterritoriality. The Rules of Decision Act that as 11 been argued apply in particular to your state law claims.
12 Would you divest yourself or give up these state laws claims to 13 save yourselves concerning the Rules of Decision Act? I don't 14 know the answer.

15                   MR. DeFILIPPO: Well, your Honor, the statute is like 16 one sentence long and we all know that there is an adverse 17 presumption against extraterritorial application and I don't 18 think that that is one of those statutes Judge Chapman has any 19 difficulty applying to the facts before her. There are no 20 facts before her yet. So we need a record before we can decide 21 what conduct is going to be immunized against attack by virtue 22 of that statute.

23                   THE COURT: Do you agree, sir, there is at least a 24 possibility that a court, some sort either, a bankruptcy court 25 or district court, could find that certain of the state law

F54FLEH2

1 claims would not have extraterritorial application?

2 MR. DeFILIPPO: Of course I concede that, your Honor.

3 THE COURT: How many foreign defendants -- maybe that 4 is the wrong way of looking at it. I will try it this way:
5 How many foreign defendants are there in the adversary 6 proceeding?

7 MR. DeFILIPPO: I cannot answer that off the top of my 8 head. About 50 percent.

9 THE COURT: But your view is that even as to those 10 defendants much of the conduct occurred or had some connection 11 with the United States such that it would not be an 12 extraterritorial application of U.S. law.

13 MR. DeFILIPPO: Either that or more importantly the 14 U.S. laws apply -- the Bankruptcy Code sections apply to them
15 outside the U.S. whether or not the state claims apply to them
16 outside the U.S. remains to be seen.

17 THE COURT: I am having some difficulty. This may be 18 more the fault of Wal-Mart than any of the briefing here, but I 19 would like to understand whether Judge Chapman or me or any 20 judge can certify a (b)(1) or a (b)(2) defendant class action.
21 So you've heard from your adversaries, their views on the issue 22 and I think it breaks down for them between declaratory and 23 monetary relief. I would like to hear your views on that.

24 MR. DeFILIPPO: The Second Circuit affirmed the 25 certification of a (b)(2) defense class in Brown v. Kelley.

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: What kind of case was that? Was that not 2 a public officials case?

3                   MR. DeFILIPPO: Yes, it was.

4                   THE COURT: Where I saw that the Second Circuit may be 5 just because these are the cases that have been presented to it 6 has certified these class actions in situations involving local 7 public officials or intellectual property cases brought by a 8 single intellectual property rights holder. I think I may have 9 seen them in a securities class action where there is a 10 declining fund. Perhaps you are going to tell me I shouldn't 11 worry about where if presented with this situation they would 12 uphold the certification here, too.

13                  MR. DeFILIPPO: Well, we're hopeful of that, your 14 Honor. We have authority in our favor. They have never said 15 no to it.

16                  THE COURT: But given the due process and other 17 concerns I mentioned earlier, why are you so I confident that 18 they would allow it here?

19                  MR. DeFILIPPO: Your Honor, this case is a para 20 dynamitic example of why the rule should be applied to 21 collective litigation. As you've heard there are 140 people 22 all of whom say that they are different. We say they are all 23 the same for purposes of the fundamental legal issues in the 24 case. We need a class vehicle to decide that issue. We need a 25 way to manage a litigation with that many parties. It is going

F54FLEH2

1 to be a nightmare to manage otherwise. We think that Rule 23 2 was designed to allow management of defendants as well as 3 plaintiffs. That's what it boils down to.

4 THE COURT: Is your stronger argument under (b) (1) or 5 (b) (2) and could you explain to me why?

6 MR. DeFILIPPO: Your Honor, I didn't come prepared to 7 make that argument today. I apologize to you.

8 THE COURT: But you are sure that on the issue of 9 liability it is not (b) (3).

10 MR. DeFILIPPO: I am sure about that. Even though 11 many of them are already in the case and so opting out even if 12 they were certified under (b) (3) opting out doesn't do them any 13 good as your Honor observed. They will still be parties. It 14 will be nice to have a class that also bound people that we may 15 be able to locate later.

16 THE COURT: I guess the concern that I have for your 17 hybrid argument is that I think you and your adversaries have a 18 different view and it is a bit of a chicken and egg issue 19 between your request for declaratory relief and request for 20 monetary relief. What I understand you to be claiming is that 21 any request for monetary relief flows from the declaratory 22 relief sought, namely, you would like the Court to find that 23 certain things were amounted to improper ipso facto 24 transactions and also declaratory judgment that the safe harbor 25 does not apply to certain agreements and thereafter you hope to

1 claw back moneys that were paid out by the trustees. I guess
2 so but I guess it could be said equally as easily that what you
3 want ultimately is not merely the declaratory relief but you
4 want the money back. That is your obligation. You are trying 5 to get as much back for the estate as possible. I am trying to 6 figure out and your adversaries I know will argue the converse 7 of what you now say to me, but I am trying to figure out what 8 came first, the request for monetary relief or the declaratory 9 relief and what I should consider to be driving this particular 10 adversary proceeding.

11 MR. DeFILIPPO: Well, without a finding on liability 12 we cannot get monetary relief of course, your Honor. So we 13 need to get that first. We need to find liability. Secondly, 14 the defendants have argued that they have defenses to the 15 imposition of damages, a number of defenses including how you 16 value the swaps. They challenge our determination that we were 17 3 billion in the money at the petition date. They say there 18 are different ways to value the swaps and we weren't in the 19 money. They also claim that they are not obligated to pay it 20 back under a number of different theories that are defenses to 21 the avoidance claims. So there are a lot of ways that we can 22 get a finding on liability and may not be able to get the damages.

23 THE COURT: Aren't the issues that you have just 24 raised for me issues of individual import to particular 25 defendants that counsel against certification of the class?

F54FLEH2

1                   MR. DeFILIPPO: Not if they only relate to damages and 2 damages are under (b) (3). Liability is not under (b) (3). It's 3 hopefully under (b) (1) or (b) (2). So there are very few 4 distinctions among the defendants with respect to liability.
5 You haven't heard any really.

6                   THE COURT: Okay. My question, and maybe I 7 misperceived your prior answer to me, when you were talking 8 about the fact that certain defendants believe that the 9 transactions were not as favorable to LBSF as you suggested, I 10 thought that would have suggested that there was no 11 impermissible -- that the flip clause didn't matter because 12 they were going to get money anyway.

13                  MR. DeFILIPPO: No, your Honor. They go to our 14 damages. They argue that depending on how you run one of these 15 sophisticated computer models that calculates the value
16 derivatives, you are not really owed 50 million, you are owed 17 $2 or something like that. That's really what the defense is.
18 It is not that there is no ipso facto clause because the swaps 19 had no value. We wouldn't have sued people if we were sure the 20 swaps had no value.

21                  THE COURT: But did you consistently sue all of the 22 counter-parties to the swapped transactions? Were there any as 23 to whom you made a determination of the swaps value and not 24 worth pursuing?

25                  MR. DeFILIPPO: Yes, your Honor. And there are also a

F54FLEH2

1 whole group of deals which are called the non-distributed deals 2 where the trustees are still holding the money and where the 3 noteholders did not receive it. Those are not before you, but 4 theoretically I guess if there were adjudications in those 5 cases, they could also be an intervening decision that might 6 affect Judge Chapman's determination of this case.

7 THE COURT: They are their own adversary proceeding?

8 MR. DeFILIPPO: Yes.

9 THE COURT: They are before her now?

10 MR. DeFILIPPO: Yes.

11 THE COURT: They haven't been withdrawn or no one is 12 passing on the issues in that case other than Judge Chapman?

13 MR. DeFILIPPO: Not that I know of, your Honor. I
14 have those citations to Title 28, your Honor. 1331, 15 2244(d)(1)(B), 2255(a), 2264 (a), 4104(a)(1).

16 THE COURT: Thank you. There is an issue of 17 typicality that is part of the Rule 23 analysis and I think I 18 would like to just talk to you a little bit about what I was 19 discussing with your adversaries. How deeply do I need to get 20 into the weeds of the certification motion in order to figure 21 out whether there are substantial federal non-bankruptcy issues 22 that compel, not just counsel, withdrawal of the reference?

23 MR. DeFILIPPO: Your Honor, I don't think you need to 24 get into it anymore deeply than the movants have asked you to 25 get in their papers. That is limited to Rules Enabling Act and

F54FLEH2

1 due process I think.

2 THE COURT: Okay.

3 MR. DeFILIPPO: We have only begun I think to cover 4 those; but if you would like me to turn to those, I am happy to 5 do so.

6 THE COURT: Yes. I am running out of specific 7 questions for you, sir. I can make up some, but I would rather 8 hear from you on as much as I know you enjoy standing here for 9 this. Tell me why they are wrong.

10 MR. DeFILIPPO: They are wrong because they don't give 11 full effect for the mandatory purposes, for the full text of 12 157(d)(2) second sentence. First of all, as you know there is 13 a dispute over whether laws of the United States includes case
14 law. I think the Alverton case put it best when they said
15 judges of the United States in deciding cases and writing 16 opinions aren't enacting laws regulating organizations or 17 activities effecting interstate commerce. That is not their 18 job. That is Congress's job. Laws of the United States 19 regulating organizations or activities affecting interstate 20 commerce also arguably doesn't apply to the Constitution if you 21 follow extended stay in the other cases we cited to you that 22 say the Constitution is not part of that for the statutory 23 interpretive reasons which I mentioned earlier.

24 Secondly, many of the issues as I said don't involve 25 substantial and material consideration. Finally, your Honor,

1 there is nothing in their brief or in their reply that answers
2 the interstate commerce question other than Judge Rakoff's 3 decisions which as I've noted do not discuss the issue. Your 4 Honor would be writing on a clean slate as we view it. There 5 are a couple of cases from out of this district that they cite.
6 The Oil Company case which deals with the internal revenue 7 code, which we concede is a law that regulates organizations or 8 activities affecting interstate commerce. The Murry case deals
9 with the Eleventh Amendment and the judge just says it is a law 10 that regulates organizations or activities affecting interstate 11 commerce without explaining why. There is very little 12 persuasive or precedential value to any of the cases they cite 13 on that issue and we don't think your Honor can ignore a key 14 section of one 157(d)(2) in deciding this issue. REA, Rules 15 Enabling Act, is not a law regulating organizations or 16 activities affecting interstate commerce. It is part of Title
17 28. It derives from the judiciary power. It has nothing to do 18 with Congress. Same could be said for the Rules Enabling Act.
19 If you look at the he Co case, Co Truman, that dealt with the 20 Tucker Act another Title 28 case and it made our argument for 21 us. Title 28 is not a provision that derives from the commerce 22 clause. It has no connection to the commerce clause. It is 23 not rooted in the commerce clause. Those are the kinds of 24 things that must be shown in order for a law of the United 25 States to be the basis for mandatory withdraw.

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: Let's turn to permissive withdrawal.

2                   MR. DeFILIPPO: Thank you.

3                   THE COURT: There is something to be said for 4 efficiencies. Although, I recognize that in saying that to 5 take that to its logical extreme would require just getting rid 6 of the standing order entirely and having everything come into 7 the district court in the first instance, which is a unwise 8 thing to do. It seems to me I feel for defendants who have 9 been waiting five years to figure out whether B and Y is 10 correct or not. Now, are there instances where they have 11 squandered an opportunity to appeal it? I don't get that sense 12 here. They just wanted to know and they haven't yet been in a 13 position to figure it out and now, now, they have a chance to 14 do so. Why shouldn't they? Why shouldn't they figure out 15 whether this even works? Why shouldn't they be able to 16 forestall a repeat of the Enron situation that we were talking 17 about earlier and not have to go through the very significant 18 burdensome exercises certifying a class first?

19                   MR. DeFILIPPO: Well, a couple answers to that, Judge.
20 First of all, they have four our $2 billion for that five 21 years. It is not like they have been sitting there waiting to 22 get money from us.

23                   THE COURT: Again, you are not foregoing interest; 24 right?

25                   MR. DeFILIPPO: No.

F54FLEH2

1                   THE COURT: I didn't think so.

2                   MR. DeFILIPPO: We still don't have either a judgment
3 or the money back. It is a little premature to talk about 4 interest. They have our money. If they want to put it up in 5 escrow somewhere, we will forgo interest then.

6                   THE COURT: I think it would have to be retrieved from 7 various quadrants, but I understand.

8                   MR. DeFILIPPO: That is why I made the offer; there is 9 no chance.

10                  THE COURT: You can put up another 2 billion to 11 forestall interest. Please continue.

12                  MR. DeFILIPPO: Secondly, your Honor, this issue is 13 really an issue of first impression in the case before you.

14                  THE COURT: Which issue is that, sir?

15                  MR. DeFILIPPO: The issue of whether the ipso facto
16 and other bankruptcy questions should be decided by Judge
17 Chapman or by you. It goes back to who has final adjudicative 18 authority over those questions. The bankruptcy judge clearly 19 can decide what they characterize as the central issues in this 20 case that you heard them say will determine the outcome of this 21 case. She has the power post-Stern to make those decisions.
22 The cases uniformly hold in the permissive context it is the 23 analogue to the old core and non-core distinction, which was 24 found to be determinative.

25                  THE COURT: But this doesn't mean I don't have the

F54FLEH2

1 power, right, it just means she does?

2 MR. DeFILIPPO: Yes. But if you are looking for what 3 informs your Honor's discretion under the O'Ryan factors it is 4 a very important fact whether the bankruptcy court can decide 5 the key issues in the case as to whether or not you should or 6 should not withdraw the reference. She has the power to decide 7 the key issues in the case. The delay is not entirely our 8 fault. Some of the delay has been caused by this motion.
9 Well, we are prepared to move this case forward with alacrity.

10 THE COURT: I am confused as to how this motion is 11 delaying this case because Judge Chapman hasn't stopped as a 12 result of this motion.

13 MR. DeFILIPPO: Well, not really, your Honor. That's 14 correct. But this motion has added to the burdens of the 15 parties in litigating.

16 THE COURT: That I will stipulate. I have no reason 17 to believe that she is waiting for me.

18 MR. DeFILIPPO: That's true.

19 THE COURT: Go on.

20 MR. DeFILIPPO: So why should you allow her to rule?
21 Because she has the power to rule, because as you said earlier 22 her views are of value to her, because the cases almost 23 uniformly hold in the swaps context in the Lehman's case that 24 the district court should obtain the benefits of the bankruptcy 25 court's views on the issues either through decision or through

F54FLEH2

1 a report and recommendation subject to de novo review, which is 2 of an immense benefit to the district court in saving it time,
3 saving the parties and the court time and focusing on the key 4 things. Take advantage of the bankruptcy's court expertise in 5 this area and the case will ultimately move quicker than it
6 would otherwise move I think is the thrust of the 10 or so 7 decisions that have denied withdrawal of the reference 8 permissively in the Lehman case so far.

9 THE COURT: Your view here as well is if I stay out of 10 the way, the case will move quickly?

11 MR. DeFILIPPO: Well, I am not familiar with your 12 Honor's calendar and practices. So I am not going to say that 13 is the case or not, but I think you would be justified in 14 concluding that it would be the case if you allowed Judge 15 Chapman to retain jurisdiction over the matter.

16 THE COURT: Now, your adversaries actually filed the 17 papers so I am going to let them get the last word. I hear 18 from you now if there is anything you want to make sure I am 19 focused on.

20 MR. DeFILIPPO: There is one thing I would like to 21 mentioned in mandatory and that is the whole idea that 22 resolution of the issue has to be necessary to the resolution
23 of the proceeding. That is the non-bankruptcy federal law 24 issue has to be necessary to the resolution of the proceedings.
25 None of these issues that they have raised is the basis for

F54FLEH2

1 mandatory withdraw are necessary for the resolution of the 2 proceedings. The the Second Circuit said exactly that. Not 3 only most consideration of those issues be substantial and 4 material they must be required for the resolution of the 5 proceedings. So that is the language of the statute. None of 6 these issues rise to the level of being dispositive.

7 THE COURT: Anything else?

8 MR. DeFILIPPO: No, your Honor.

9 THE COURT: Thank you.

10 Mr. Livshiz or Mr. Blocker, who would like to speak 11 first? I have no questions for you. I just want to hear your 12 responses, if any, that has been said to me.

13 MR. LIVSHIZ: Thank you, your Honor. Well, first of 14 all I think we can start where Mr. Plaintiff's counsel left off 15 which is necessary to the resolution of the proceeding. Given 16 that albeit it is not as you just heard consistent with being 17 with class action. I am not sure how it is possible to resolve 18 the proceeding without resolving The American Pipe and 23(b)(2) 19 issues that defendants have raised.

20 Then I would like to turn to the interstate commerce 21 argument, your Honor. LB has spent a significant chunk of 22 their brief and there are oppositions to our motion today 23 talking about it, your Honor. This is a question in which we 24 submit they are wrong for several reasons. First, if you -- at 25 a very basic if you read the statute, the statute says there

F54FLEH2

1 has to be a law that regulate activities affecting interstate 2 commerce. The rules of the decision act, your Honor, is a law 3 that in court state laws into the federal judiciary where 4 that -- where federal courts adjudicate cases between litigants 5 from different states asserting claims among others such as 6 contracts and business torts. That absolutely affects 7 interstate commerce, your Honor. Looking at the class action 8 issues it occurs to me as I was listening to Mr. DeFilippo that 9 there is very seldom where plaintiffs' lawyers and defense 10 lawyers in this district agree; but if there is one thing which 11 they can agree on whether is that class actions as they are 12 practiced in the United States, in fact interstate commerce in 13 the United States and affects business done in the United 14 States. For that reason, your Honor, alone I submit that that 15 resolves the interstate commerce question. However, the -- 16 moreover, in the Southern District whether it is Judge Rakoff 17 or to go all the way back to 1986 Judge Laval when he was in 18 the District Court, was drawn questions on -- have withdrawn 19 the reference on questions that were not -- did not require the 20 interpretation of the statute passed under the commerce clause.
21 Specifically, your Honor, I would like to point you to a case 22 which is not cited in our papers. If possible, I would like to 23 hand it up to you, your Honor. It is the John Maslo case. I 24 gave a copy to plaintiffs' counsel today. In that case, your 25 Honor, dating back top 1986 Judge Laval withdrew reference and

F54FLEH2

1 the need to consider a contribution and indemnity claim as that 2 claim concerned a federal statute. That was sufficient.

3 Moving forward since then we have now had 30 years of 4 interpretation and bankruptcy court -- sorry, district courts 5 in this district have routinely withdrawn the reference on 6 statutes that are not passed under the commerce clause.

7 In Re Oil, which concerns the internal revenue code as 8 the Piccardo v. Flynn, your Honor, address the internal revenue
9 code. To be honest I am not sure whether the internal revenue 10 code is passed pursuant to the congressional spending power or 11 pursuant to the Sixteenth Amendment, but what is quite clear is 12 it not passed to the commerce power of the Constitution.

13 Your Honor, focusing on cases that out of the district 14 court cases to which Mr. DeFilippo points, before we get to 15 Cotermin I would like to refer your Honor to the Underwood 16 case, which is one of the first cases from 1995 in the Northern 17 District of Indian that considered this question. There the 18 judge specifically admitted that he was taking a more 19 restrictive view of this provision that other courts have 20 taken. There, your Honor, and this is also a question in 21 Cotermin, the question concerned whether -- the question 22 concerned jurisdiction. In that case after finding the 23 mandatory withdrawal was not implicated, the Judge nevertheless 24 withdrew the reference anyhow. Cotermin then took that idea
25 and applied it to the Tucker Act. The question in the Tucker

F54FLEH2

1 Act, your Honor, is whether sovereign immunity had been waived
2 through the adjudication of certain claims. The reason -- one 3 of the reasons the court refused to withdraw the reference in 4 the Cotermin the case is to adjudicate the question required
5 necessarily adjudicating a section of the Bankruptcy Code, 6 Section 107, which waives sovereign immunity from bankruptcy
7 proceedings. There is no similar provision of the Bankruptcy
8 Code at issue here and all of the courts that have considered 9 the question in the Southern District, save one the extended 10 state case, have withdrawn the question and whether the federal 11 law that requires interpretation is the statute federal common 12 law for the United States Constitution.

13 Extended stay, your Honor, I submit can be limited to 14 the question of whether just like In Re Chateaugay case, which 15 we discussed earlier, are cases which consider the Bankruptcy 16 Court's power to adjudicate certain issues. The issues we put 17 before you today are not questions of whether a bankruptcy
18 court can do something. There are a question of whether a 19 federal court can do something, whether it certified a (b) (2) 20 class, tolling a statute of limitation in the context of a 21 defendant class, or adjudicate state law claims as against 22 extraterritorial conduct.

23 Finally, there are issues of statutory interpretation, 24 your Honor. As Judge Rakoff noted in Flynn -- sorry, in Access 25 Management, a case cited in our papers, in considering the

F54FLEH2

1 question of whether federal common law could be the basis of 2 withdrawal, federal common law and certainly the Constitution 3 are federal laws. To the extent that the statute was going to 4 be written to require the interpretation of a statute passed by 5 Congress laws, certainly the word "statute" could have been 6 used not the word "law."

7 With that you, your Honor, turning to the question of 8 hybrid certification and American Pipe, I will address the 9 statute of the limitation question briefly at the end. Looking 10 at LBSF's opposition to our motion here today and their reply 11 under class certification context, some 20 cases are cited 12 concerning hybrid certification. Those cases all have one 13 thing in common: None of them are a defendant class. The due 14 process issues raised by attempting to certify a (b) (2) class 15 for liability, your Honor, are just as applicable and just as 16 relevant to what an LBFS is trying to do in the context of a 17 hybrid class as they would be in a straight up (b) (2) class.

18 In responding to a point that was made about seeking 19 to impose counsel and an executive committee and defendants on 20 efficiency point, your Honor, that was not done as a substitute
21 for a class action. That was done as an addition to the class 22 action vehicle.

23 THE COURT: You are suggesting that there was no 24 alternative offer prior to the discussion of class 25 certification?

F54FLEH2

1                   MR. LIVSHIZ: Your Honor, as long as we have been 2 involved in the case, we have not heard an alternative to class
3 certification. This was always proceeding as a class. There
4 is a reason for that, your Honor. Absent class there is no
5 American Pipe toll. After the American Pipe tolling some 67 6 defendants accounting for $1.5 billion will we submit dismissed 7 from this case.

8                   Now, that brings us your Honor to the question of 9 statute of limitation. Mr. DeFilippo is right that the 10 avoidance claims do have the two-year statute. We submit, 11 however, that he is wrong and that the other claims which LBSF 12 seeks to invoke have a longer statute as that question is 13 raised in this case, your Honor. So first of all, the state 14 law fraudulent conveyance claims do in fact permit a six-year 15 look-back but they have to be asserted within two years of the 16 bankruptcy. That is Section 544. Beyond that, your Honor, 17 defendants submit that the other claims, and this is the 18 Barclay and Rosen cases cited in the supplemental brief on 19 statute of limitations, require the application of a two-year 20 statute to the other bankruptcy claims asserted by the estate.
21 The estate says in response, No, what is necessary is to apply 22 a statute of limitations that most naturally fits these 23 provisions and the context of this case. That is clearly state 24 law and that is clearly six years, but there is actually no 25 warrant for that. In essence, what LBFS seeks to do here is

1 make the defendants money its own. It seeks to clawback from 2 defendants some $2 billion that they received in connection 3 with these transactions plus another billion dollars in 4 interest with that number increasing as we discussed the claim.
5 There is no warrant at all for why the six-year statute should 6 govern and we submit, your Honor, that in fact the two-year 7 statute would be more appropriate.

8 Finally on the trustee point and the 550(f) point, 9 that hasn't actually we submit help. In practical terms it has 10 always had their money there so the claims had to be asserted 11 within the two years.

12 Finally, to close off on extra territoriality, your 13 Honor, at the heart of Mr. DeFilippo's argument is the 14 sentiment that it is one sentence and therefore it will not 15 require significant interpretation of federal law. Another 16 federal statute comes to mind. Also raises quite a ruckus in 17 the extraterritoriality context and that is the alien tort 18 statute. That one-sentence statute has been up to the Supreme 19 Court twice in recent memory, your Honor, including in the 20 DeQuebo case which is where the Supreme Court interpreted the 21 alien tort statute, the one-sentence statute, they concluded 22 that it is barred extraterritorial application of the law.
23 Similarly here, we submit, your Honor, the interpretation of 24 the Rules of Decision Act will be required.

25 THE COURT: Anything else, sir?

1 MR. LIVSHIZ: No.

2 THE COURT: Your last chance.

3 MR. LIVSHIZ: Not from me.

4 THE COURT: Mr. Blocker?

5 MR. BLOCKER: Judge, I have two small points that will 6 take a couple minutes. Lehman's counsel argued you asked him 7 some questions or several questions about the safe harbor, but 8 I think what you heard in his answers tells you that there is 9 nothing left for Judge Chapman to do. What I wrote down that 10 Mr. DeFilippo says was that all Judge Chapman will have to do 11 with respect to the safe harbor is take a look at the various 12 documents that are out there and decide if the priority
13 provisions are part of the swap or not. If that is literally 14 all she has to do, why do we have to wait years on end for that 15 to happen? We can take that issue up to your Honor and we can 16 deal with it. What he is basically conceding is getting all 17 the guidance you can get from the bankruptcy court on that.

18 THE COURT: I didn't get that sense. We may have 19 heard him differently. I thought what he was saying was there 20 are ideas that are present in B and Y and Valley Rock and 21 Michigan and they require still to examine the agreements. You
22 are obviously, sir, not going to roll over when it comes to B 23 and Y and its applicability or its controlling of the 24 decisions. I think what he is saying is not that the decision 25 is made already but that a thoughtful decision actually

F54FLEH2

1 requires Judge Chapman to look at the underlying documents. We 2 can disagree on that.

3 MR. BLOCKER: I just heard it differently, your Honor.
4 There is not a whole lot for Judge Chapman to do, which she is 5 going to do is apply Judge Peck's methodology. I am not sure 6 what Judge Peck did because there are only three sentences in 7 the whole opinion of analysis of the safe harbor. I don't know
8 what Judge Peck was looking at when he did it. It doesn't 9 sound like there is a whole lot of bankruptcy court expertise 10 that is needed to do it.

11 The other point I wanted to make, your Honor, is you 12 asked Lehman's counsel a question at end about why is it fair?
13 Have we blown chances to appeal? Are we not taking advantage 14 of opportunities? Why is it fair to delay further? I didn't 15 really hear an answer. The short answer is we of course 16 haven't had any opportunity to appeal because none of these 17 defendants was in any of the prior adversary proceedings we're 18 talking about. The cases have been stayed for last four years 19 and we're prohibited from doing anything other than dealing 20 with class certification for the movement. In terms of the why 21 is it fair, this case has been going on five years without any 22 review of that decision. Your Honor points to Enron. That is 23 a perfect example of what can happen. You go through a bunch 24 of proceedings. At the end somebody decides, the Second 25 Circuit decides that the safe harbor applies therefore we're

F54FLEH2

1 out as a matter of law. Why have that delay? I don't think 2 Lehman's brief points to a single reference to withdraw case
3 where the defendants had to wait five years for an opportunity 4 to test a legal principle that was decided in some other case.
5 I am not aware of any case like that. As I said before I 6 really think that is what makes this unusual but unique 7 candidate for withdrawal.

8 THE COURT: Thank you very much for the argument
9 today.

10 Was it helpful? Absolutely. Did it clarify issues?
11 Some. Are there still issues? Yeah, of course. I will let 12 you go and have your respective postmortems on that. I will 13 get the transcript in the next 36 hours and we'll go from 14 there.

15 Let's go off the record for a moment, please.

16 (Discussion held off the record)

17 You have given me a lot to think about.
